Four Judges Looking For Judgeship Nomination

Van Etten, Jenkins, Schirick, Irwin In Race for Supreme Court Judge Nomination Next Year—Gallant Race for Limelight and Glory—Purse Strings and Advice Awaiting Democratic Callers—Meal Tickets More Numerous Than In August.

Looking beyond next Tuesday's election, many Democratic voters are wondering what is the meaning of the unusual activity that has been displayed by aspiring Democratic politicians during the summer and fall. They have seen Democratic war horses and Democratic colts galloping as if they were stepping on red hot stove. Democratic wise-aces and others who don't think they are so wise have hobnobbed with voters with whom they had been on speaking acquaintance. Democratic purse strings have been loosened in a way that makes it appear as if a wild orgy of spending is imminent between now and election day.

The four most active Democrats in Ulster county since before caucus last summer have been Judge Harry E. Schirick, county chairman and state committeeman; Judge John G. Van Etten and Judge James Jenkins. A fourth man who would like to be active if the other three Democrats would permit him is Judge Roscoe Irwin, former internal revenue collector.

Looking a Year Ahead.

While the average Democratic voter is not discussing his thoughts, he is looking beyond next Tuesday's election to the election of 1926, and he is not forgetting that each of the Democrats mentioned is a law. Then they remember that the third judicial district will be elected from the coming election, and that Ulster county is entitled to the nomination because the term of Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck will expire at that time.

So the Democratic voters are taking stock of the Democratic candidates for supreme court judge next year and considering the activities of each aspirant.

Judge Van Etten's Activities.

Judge John G. Van Etten has been especially active this year. In fact, no Democrat can remember that he has shown the same amount of activity since 1904 when he was defeated as a candidate to succeed himself as county judge. In that year he was a member of "that gallant band of 26" who made the pilgrimage to the St. Louis National Convention and helped nominate Judge Parker for president. He helped decide the local nominations, including his own, that year.

Since then he has made an occasional political speech and always opened his heart whenever Democratic candidates, no matter how humble the office they were seeking or how remote the section of the county they lived in, came for financial help in their hour of campaign trial. John Stree became used for his generous political contributions to the Democratic war chests both great and small.

This year Judge Van Etten placed Major Roscoe Irwin in nomination at the Democratic city convention, is running the campaigns of Jacob V. Merrihew for county treasurer and Morris Block for mayor, is managing the campaigns of Democratic candidates for supervisor and alderman and displaying a liberal pocketbook and fund of advice that are both eagerly sought by deserving but hungry Democrats.

Judge Schirick's Activities.

The hungry Democrats, however, are not forgetting who it was that satisfied their hunger on the day they assembled for their county convention at the Kingston Opera House on August 12. It was Judge Harry E. Schirick, they say, who started the fund that gave them their meal tickets that day, even though he had only recently resigned as judge of the city court and sacrificed his salary on the altar of expectancy.

Judge Schirick's "expectancy," they figure, is the nomination for supreme court judge next year which also furnishes the light for Judge Van Etten's path. Inasmuch as Judge Van Etten smiled out the Schirick boom, there is doubt among the delegates whether he contributed as liberally to the delegates' feed fund as he would have done for a fund which Judge Schirick was not seeking credit for raising alone and unaided. Judge Schirick was not old enough to belong to "that gallant band of 26" in 1904.

To many Democrats it seems strange that Judge Schirick should do his political duties as county chairman and state committeeman so unassuming that he must devote his entire time to them—unless he wants to demonstrate next year that he alone not only led the county convention delegates last August but also is the only person entitled to any glory that may result from next Tuesday's election and therefore entitled to the nomination for supreme court judge. Judge Schirick presided over the convention which named all the county and city candidates.

Mitchell Starts Off With Series Of Victories

Major General Sumnerall, Brigadier General Bowley and Brigadier General Sladen Dismissed From Jury In Court Martial Trial of Colonel Billy Mitchell.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Oct. 28.—Colonel Billy Mitchell, the stormy petrel of the army air service, started off his court martial today with a pair of victories.

On the ground that two of the generals sitting as his judges were prejudiced against him, personally and officially, he successfully challenged their right to sit in judgment upon him, and they retired. One of them was Major General Charles Sumnerall, the presiding officer of the court; the other was Brigadier General Albert Bowley.

Bowley went first, after some consultation among the 12 generals comprising the court. Then Frank S. Reid, civilian counsel for Mitchell, challenged Sumnerall.

Sumnerall Challenged.

Reid challenged Sumnerall for "personal prejudice" at Mitchell's personal direction. This prejudice, Reid contended, was due to a report Mitchell had made while assistant chief of the army air service condemning Sumnerall's handling of aviation while in command of the Hawaiian department. In his report, Mitchell said, Sumnerall "knew nothing of aviation."

Sumnerall immediately arose, admitted he had criticized Mitchell and asked to be excused from the court.

Sladen Dismissed.

A few minutes later, Mitchell ran his string of tactical victories to three by peremptorily challenging the advisability of Brigadier General Fred W. Sladen, commandant at West Point, to sit, and Sladen was dismissed without further ado.

Howse Presides.

The retirement of General Sumnerall made Major General Robert L. Howse, the presiding officer of the court.

Mitchell looked his judges over carefully while Reid's voice droned out the charges. When Reid read a portion touching on the Shenandoah disaster Mrs. Mitchell put her arms around the colonel. He turned and she smiled encouragement.

The jury of generals held a scattered array of poses. Howse, McCoy and Winans watched Reid. MacArthur, the debonair, left his eyes on Mitchell. Graves and King, old "war dogs," were bored by the speech.

The spectators' interest waned after Reid had read for half an hour. But all held their hard iron seats in the hope of seeing a display of military fireworks later.

Military Atmosphere.

The trial had plenty military atmosphere. Along one side of the room ran a cordon of soldiers, wearing side arms. Several officers on watch duty carried swords while all wore military decorations.

After finishing the statement, Reid added "we contend there is nothing in this statement which violates any military law or any article of war."

At the request of the court, Reid then gave way to Lieutenant Colonel Joseph I. McMullen, assistant judge advocate, who read the formal charges and specifications against Mitchell.

"Let the defendant arise," said General Howse. Mitchell arose with a snap. He remained standing while McMullen droned out the charges again.

Spectators Bored. The defense moves were made shortly after the court had convened, until the challenge against General Bowley was launched, the crowd of civilians present had become bored with the slow, technical procedure.

The opening proceedings were conducted by Colonel Sherman Moreland, judge advocate, who first asked the court when any member had "investigated the case" or whether "any would be promoted in event of dismissal of the defendant" there was no answer from the generals.

"Has any member of the court a declared enmity against the defendant?" Moreland next asked. Again there was no reply.

Mitchell sat quietly at counsel table, whispering occasionally to Mrs. Mitchell.

The Jury.

As finally constituted, Mitchell's jury was composed of Major General Robert L. Howse, president and commandant of the Fifth (Columbian) Corps Area; Major General Douglas MacArthur, commandant of the third (Baltimore, Md.) Corps Area; Major General William S. Graves, commandant of the Sixth (Chicago, Ill.) Corps Area; Major General Benjamin A. Poore, commandant of the Seventh (Omaha, Neb.) Corps Area; Brig. General Edward L. King, commandant at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; Brig. General Frank R. McCoy, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Brig. General Edwin R. Williams, Fort Clark, Texas; Brig. General George L. Britton, Fort Sill, Okla.; Brig. General Edwin E. Booth, Fort Riley, Kansas; and Colonel Blanton, commandant of the law member of the court.

World Roads Charges.

With the court reconvened, Reid arose to make a motion challenging "the jurisdiction" of the court. While he read the complete charges (Continued on Page 14)

New Clash in Balkan War

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Oct. 28.—War has again broken out along the Greco-Bulgarian frontier, according to advices received here today.

While evacuation of the Greek troops from Bulgaria was underway in accordance with the League of Nations ultimatum, a new clash occurred, and indications are that fighting may be general.

Artillery Fire Continued.

Paris, Oct. 28.—Greece has continued her artillery fire against Bulgarian troops and towns, despite the league council's orders, despite announced compliance with them, and despite Bulgaria's desire to restore peace.

This declaration was made to the league council today by M. Morloff, Bulgarian representative.

Orders have been given for the troop withdrawal commencing the morning of October 28 (today), the Greek telegram read.

"We have given orders to withdraw troops, but the Greek artillery fire continues," the Bulgarian representative declared.

The council of the League of Nations, convened after an hour's delay today, had just listened to a telegram from Athens, read by the Greek representative, Minister Karapandis, agreeing to all the council's demands and assuring the body that the withdrawal of troops from Bulgarian territory would be carried out as directed.

The delay in opening the meeting was occasioned by the arrival of the Greek telegram and the deciding of it.

The Bulgarian representative notified the council that a Greek officer would meet a Bulgarian officer at the frontier this afternoon to determine the extent of the Bulgarian occupation.

Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, made a brief speech, stating that Great Britain "is proud to be a member of the league and to take part in this important council for the prevention of war. I am happy to see the speed and ease of the machinery of the league in operation."

The council then adjourned until tomorrow.

ANOTHER GEM ROBBERY MYSTERY IN NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 28.—A new jewel robbery mystery confronted police today while they were busy trying to get a possible clue to the identity of the person who stole $653,000 from Mrs. James P. Donahue, heiress to the Woolworth millions.

Mrs. Julius Lichtenstein, of 300 West End avenue, it was learned was robbed Monday night of jewels valued at $85,000. The robbery was accomplished while Mrs. Lichtenstein slept in her home, guarded by trusted servants.

Her husband, Julius, president of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, was in Florida when the robbery occurred. He was notified and is on his way home.

Mrs. Lichtenstein was under the care of a physician today.

The robbery was the latest of a long series of jewel robberies that have mystified the police of New York.

DR. LINN IS ARRESTED ON NON-SUPPORT CHARGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Another episode today crowded into the hectic career of Dr. Willis Linn, former star in college football and captain in the state troopers.

He was arrested on a non-support charge pressed by his wife whom he charged with attempting to murder him in their apartment last August.

The Broome county grand jury failed to indict Mrs. Linn for second degree assault, a charge growing out of the shooting which left Linn in the hospital at the point of death for more than a week.

Mystery surrounding the shooting was never cleared up. The former collegian came bail and was released.

DR. STINNES SECRETLY DEPARTED FOR CHILE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Berlin, Oct. 28.—The ruins of the great Stinnes industrial structure have toppled about the weary head of Dr. Edmund Stinnes, son of the founder of the vast enterprise.

Defeated in his efforts to bring life back into the colossal chain of steel and iron plants, mines and railroads, curbed by bankers, to whom he appealed for funds and a sufferer from a nervous breakdown, Dr. Stinnes had left the black ruins in the hands of his wife, and called for Chile to start again.

His recent departure was made a week or more ago, it was learned today.

Fisher refused to set aside the $27,500 verdict Miss Bennett was ordered to pay for alienating the affections of Charles Frey, her husband.

Wife Tells How Sculptor Won Her Affections

Highland Woman Says She Did Not Leave Her Husband But Did Not Want to Look at His Face and Kept Apart From Him.

The action for alienation of affections brought by Odo A. Broglio against Antonio Belo was continued in the supreme court Tuesday, Mrs. Broglio being examined at great length when she was called by plaintiff. Her testimony was to the effect that Belo was an ardent wooer and was a frequent visitor at the West Park home of her husband during the fall of 1923 and the following months.

Although Mrs. Broglio never left her husband she testified that for a period of months she did not want to "look at his face" and kept apart from him. At one time she contemplated suicide and spent a great part of her time in weeping.

Urged Her to Leave Home.

According to her testimony Belo insisted that she leave her husband and come and live with him. He told her that her husband was not faithful to her and offered his protection. When she refused to accept his offer he told her she would regret her acts. She testified that Belo was a very frequent caller at West Park, often weekly, and spent several days at a time there. During his visits there he would urge her to leave and kissed and caressed her, telling her that she resembled a dead daughter of his.

Would Build House For Her.

He drew plans of a handsome villa which he said he would build for her at Crayville, Columbia county, where he owned land. He showed her a picture of the proposed villa with her name on the parapet of a tower and on the drawing he placed the figure of two people who he told her represented themselves.

Says Gifts Were Costly.

Later in the winter of 1923 and 1924 she went to New York to work. While there she stayed with her sister and during that time Belo was a frequent visitor at her home and often came to the place where she worked and met her. He made costly presents to her and offered a home of luxury, servants, motor cars and a capote life if she would leave her husband who he said was unfaithful to her.

Photographed Together.

He told her he would make a bas-relief of her in marble if she would have her picture taken. She went to a photographer and had her photograph taken. At that time Belo asked if she would pose for a picture with him and she did. The photographs were introduced in evidence.

Remained Apart From Husband.

Later he told her she was ill and insisted that she go to a physician with him. She told him she felt well and refused to go. After being told repeatedly she looked ill she finally did go to a physician and was told she was suffering from a very serious ailment. Belo told her that he would "give an eye from his head if necessary to have me cured," and on her return to West Park after this she remained apart from her husband for months although she remained in his home. Later she was examined by her doctor and was told that she was not suffering from any illness. It was prior to this that she contemplated suicide.

She testified to having received many costly gifts from Belo. Several letters in Italian were introduced in evidence but were not read.

Daughters Testify for Father.

When court adjourned Tuesday evening the plaintiff's case was concluded and when court opened this morning the defense was taken up.

Two daughters of Belo and his son were called and testified. They denied that their father had been interested in Mrs. Broglio and denied having seen any acts which could be termed improprieties between them. The Belo girls had been at the West Park boarding house for vacation periods and testified that their father had come and spent some time there but was simply friendly toward Mr. and Mrs. Broglio.

Broglios always seemed happy. They testified that during the summer of 1924, when it is alleged Mr. and Mrs. Broglio were not on friendly terms and when the affections of the wife had been transferred to Mr. Belo according to the plaintiffs, they had observed the Broglios on very friendly terms. They never noticed anything but friendly feelings between Mr. Broglio and his wife. They always appeared happy and Mrs. Broglio appeared to be happy.

Daughter Sold Diamond Ring.

Several of the presents which plaintiff claims Belo made to Mrs. Broglio the defendant's witnesses testified had been made by members of the Belo family. The mantle set was given on the occasion of the Broglio wedding anniversary and was from the son of Mr. Belo and his two daughters. The diamond ring which plaintiff said had been a present of Mr. Belo one of the daughters testified had been given to her at Christmas in 1922 and she had not liked it. It was too large and she offered to sell it to Mrs. Broglio who was at the house and admired it. Mrs. Broglio offered to buy it for $100 and said she would pay later.

Never Paid For Ring.

The witness said she had given the ring to Mrs. Broglio along with the rest.

B. P. W. Sidesteps Democrats Vote Action Except on Three Matters

Approves Three Ordinances Relating To Grades and One Sewer But Takes No Definite Action On Numerous Other Matters Affecting City.

The board of public works held its regular monthly session at the city hall on Tuesday evening and considered various matters. A petition to grade the south side of Howland avenue so that the water main could be extended was read. Several of the signers were present at the meeting and said that the water board refused to extend the water main until the city first graded the street. The matter was referred to the street committee and superintendent to report back at the next meeting.

Referred to Superintendent.

Edward T. McGill sent in a request to the board to remove three trees from in front of his properties at 290 to 296 Broadway and also for permission to install maple trees in their place. The matter was referred to Superintendent Van Keuren with power.

Referred to Superintendent.

Applications for the creation of street signs were received from the Western Meat and Poultry Market, 33 East Strand; the City Hotel on Main street; Southard & Reicher at 519 Broadway and the Kingston Coal Company on Thomas street. They were all referred to Superintendent Van Keuren with power.

Corporation Counsel Added.

L. C. Dixon applied for permission to erect a frame building 40 by 60 feet for use as a feed warehouse at 37 O'Neil street. It was referred to the superintendent and corporation counsel with power.

Referred to Superintendent.

The Brown Tire Company asked permission to install a gas pump with swinging crane against the face of the building at 424 Washington avenue. It was referred to Superintendent Van Keuren with power.

Approves Three Ordinances.

City Engineer Hallinan introduced ordinances for the grading, curbing, guttering and flagging of Main street extension, for the construction of a storm water sewer in Foxhall avenue and Gage street, and for establishing a grade in Gage street. All three ordinances were approved by the board.

Referred to Corporation Council.

A deed conveying Madison street in Wilbur to the city was referred to a Corporation Council Jenkins to receive his report on it before acceptance.

Postpone Park Plans.

Commissioner Chandler of the park committee reported an offer received from E. W. Hathaway to supply the board with working plans for the improvement of Cornell Park on Wurts street for $400.

City Engineer Hallinan said that if given a few weeks he could prepare a plan that he thought would meet with the approval of the board and he was instructed to prepare one to be submitted at the next board meeting.

Laid on the Table.

The Universal Road Machinery Company offered to sell the city a ten ton tractor for snow removal this winter for $2,175 completely equipped. The proposition was laid on the table until the next meeting. Bills and claims were read and the board then adjourned.

INDICT BEALE ON CHARGE OF BODY STEALING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Refusing to accept the theory that he is dead, a Delaware county grand jury has indicted Fred G. Beale, missing wealthy insurance broker and president of the Mohioke Brokerage Company, on a charge of body stealing, authorities said today.

All New York state was aroused a little more than a month ago by the midnight drama that found the grave of James Davis, pauper, stripped. The deed is laid at the broker's door, police say.

No trace of Beale has been discovered. New York state police under Captain Daniel R. Fox of the Sydney barracks is heading the hunt for him.

The receipt which had been given at the time of purchase. She did so in order to show Mrs. Broglio that the ring was worth the money she asked. She said she had repeatedly asked for the $100 but had never received it.

The daughters denied that their father had ever been friendly with Mrs. Broglio or been alone at the Belo home. The case was concluded this afternoon.

Inquest in Auto Damage Case.

An inquest was taken in the action brought by Harry Neiburn against Louis York, an action to recover damages under a negligence action. Neiburn claimed that York had collided with his car, damaging it. He sought to recover the amount of the repair bill, $118.65, and also for loss of use and for depreciation. It was testified that the car depreciated $200 in value on account of the accident. The jury brought in a verdict for $168.65 for plaintiff. Neiburn H. Neiburn appeared for plaintiff.

All jurors not engaged on the Broglio-Belo case were excused for the term.

Democrats Vote Against Sawkill Road Completion

Two County Democrats Join Them In Opposing $1,000 Appropriation of Money That Must Be Used for Highway Purposes Needed to Complete Famous Road Near City.

The board of supervisors held a special session at the court house Tuesday night for the purpose of acting on highway matters resulting immediate attention. Twenty-seven of the thirty-three members were present. At least one of the absentees was unable to be present on account of illness.

The roads requiring attention either through communications from the state highway department, supervisors and residents of towns are located in the towns of Hurley, Ulster and Shandaken.

Democrats Oppose Sawkill Road.

The Kingston city Democratic supervisors and two Democratic supervisors from outside the city united in opposing the completion of the Sawkill road whose condition for many years put it in the foremost rank of the worst roads in America but which recently has been placed in good condition by the towns of Ulster and Kingston, except a short section near the city of Kingston.

Repair Work on County Building.

Supervisor McTague asked about the repair work now being done on the county clerk's office building and was informed by County Attorney Eckert that the work is being done by day's labor and the cost has been $4,775.

Judge John G. Van Etten was present during the session but took no part in the proceedings.

Hurley Road Completed.

After roll call and unanimous adoption of a motion of Supervisor J. Charles Snyder to disburse with the reading of the minutes of the previous special session, a communication from Supervisor Matthew T. E. DeWitt of Hurley was read, stating that Road No. 8 in the town of Hurley, for which $13,700.56 had been appropriated, had been completed and there was still applicable for highway construction work the sum of $7,000 of such appropriation, which amount he requested should be appropriated for the construction of Road No. 9 in that town, known as the Lucas turnpike road. The communication was placed on file.

Petitions for Hurley Roads.

A petition was received from residents of the town of Hurley and city of Kingston asking that the next road designated for improvement be the Hurley Spillway road.

A similar petition was received asking that the next road designated for improvement be the Lucas turnpike road.

Both petitions were placed on file.

Improve Turnpike Road.

A resolution introduced by Supervisor DeWitt designated Road No. 9, the Lucas turnpike road, for improvement out of the $7,000 available and heretofore appropriated for Road No. 8. In accordance with his recommendation, such road to be of bituminous construction, 24 feet wide between ditches, with a width of 14 feet. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Wants Information About Docks.

A communication was received from State Engineer Roy E. Finch stating that he had written to the supervisors for information regarding existing docks, reservoirs and dams on their town boundaries, and giving a list of the towns from which no reply had been received. The list included the inland towns.

Shandaken Road Plans Submitted.

A communication from State Highway Commissioner A. W. Brandt accompanied plans and specifications for the reconstruction of Ulster & Delaware road Part 3, No. 31, a distance of 2.52 miles, and Ulster & Delaware road Part 2, No. 217, a distance of 2.33 miles—a total for the two sections of 4.85 miles, at an estimated total cost of $215,000, of which the state's share of 65 per cent amounts to $139,750, and the county's share of 35 per cent amounts to $75,250, and enclosing the necessary resolution for adoption by the board of supervisors. Received and filed.

Supervisors Approve Plans.

The plans and specifications of State Highway Commissioner Brandt were approved by a resolution offered by Supervisor Simpson of Shandaken, which was adopted. A resolution offered by Supervisor Simpson directing the clerk to transmit a copy of the resolution to the state highway department and making available the sum of $5,750 was also adopted unanimously.

The road to be reconstructed extends eastward from Big Indian through the Big Indian valley.

Democrats Oppose Sawkill Road.

Supervisor Leiby of the town of Kingston offered a resolution that $1,000 of the motor vehicle funds applicable to road construction be allotted to the town of Ulster for completion of continuing of the Sawkill road, being Road No. 42, designated for improvement with bituminous macadam type of construction, 24 feet wide between ditches, with width of road of 18 feet.

"I have an idea we have been doing badly for the town of Ulster," said Supervisor Patrick F. McDermod of the Fourth ward, "and I

Emma Goldman Hits Bolsheviks

Went to Russia as a Friend. Now in England Broken by Soviet Cruelty and Deceit—Cites Schools as Example.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Oct. 28.—Emma Goldman, the famous woman anarchist and revolutionary, who, in 1919, was deported from the United States to Russia in consequence of her avowed radical agitation, is off the Bolsheviks for life.

Her latest book is an impassioned attack on rule by force, and furnishes what is perhaps the most convincing exposure of Bolshevism ever made public.

She went to Russia as a friend, an enthusiast for its cause, she says, but she came away disillusioned and almost brokenhearted at the display of tyranny and cruelty and the deceit of its present rulers.

"Every communist has his favorite whom he manages to list as employed on jobs," Emma Goldman says, in describing Bolshevik reconstruction schemes, "and we soon found that the newly-fledged officialdom was as hard to cope with as the old bureaucracy."

Sabotage is General.
"Thus almost before any particular scheme is announced, countless 'technicians' appear on the scene in possession of dinner tickets and bread cards, which only workers are supposed to have. The men actually mobilized for the work hardly receive anything, and the result is general sabotage."

Emma describes the reconverting of some of the famous Petrograd mansions into homes for the workers. "Early in May they were opened with great pomp, music and speeches," she says. "Glowing accounts were broadcast of the marvelous things done for the workers of Russia. In reality it was Coney Island transferred to the environs of Petrograd, a gaudy show place for credulous visitors, designed to make them believe how handsomely the new rulers were treating the people."

She visited the great Laferre tobacco factory. The air in the work-rooms was stifling, nauseating. "The women are used to this atmosphere," said the guide; "they don't mind." Some women who were at work, and girls no older than fourteen, looked haggard, their chests sunken, black rings under their eyes. Some of them coughed and the hectic flush of consumption showed on their faces. "Is there a recreation room where they can rest and take tea?" I asked. There was no such thing, I was informed. The women remained at work eight consecutive hours. They had their tea and their black bread at their benches.

Schools in Bad Shape.
"A committee of the Young Communist organization investigated some of the schools. They found the children dirty, full of vermin, sleeping on filthy mattresses, fed on miserable food, punished by being locked in dark, dirty rooms, forced to go without food, and even beaten."

"The number of officials and employees in the schools was nothing short of criminal. In one school there were 138 of them to 125 children. In another 40 to 25 children."

Writing of a visit to Odessa, she states that the depravity of the Tcheka secret police there was common knowledge. "People were shot for the slightest offenses, while those who could afford to give bribes were freed, even after they had been sentenced to death. It repeatedly happened that the relatives of a rich man would be notified by the Tcheka of his execution. A few weeks later, after they had somewhat recovered from their grief and shock, they would be informed that the report of the man's death was erroneous, that he was alive and could be liberated on payment of a heavy fine."

"Of course, the relatives would strain every effort to get the money necessary for his release. Then they would suddenly be arrested for attempted bribery, their money confiscated and the prisoner shot." "Against all this tyranny and poverty," writes Emma Goldman, "visiting missions would be entertained royally with theaters, opera, ballets and expensive dinners and excursions. Luxury was heaped upon them, while the people starved and went hungry."

Build Pyramids At Circus Ball

It was not given to Ulster county people to live in the days of the Pharaohs and to see the building of the pyramids, but "miraculous" as were these building feats, equally marvelous ones will be accomplished in the armory on Friday evening, and everyone may see those, for one of the most outstanding features of the performance will be Peerless Peter and his Perilous Pyramid Building—the Acrobatic Boys. Peerless Peter, Jerome Lehr, will have a troupe of trained tumblers who will build not only pyramids but do many equally hazardous and skillful feats.

And to help uphold the boast of this marvelous show that it has performers from all lands, there will be a beautiful ballet of Moravian dancing girls in a colorful and startlingly effective act which will without doubt prove one of the most popular of the evening.

Altogether this presentation of a circus ball by the Junior League should be an unprecedented success, including as it does features of hilarious fun, striking beauty and general dancing for which two unsurpassable local orchestras have been engaged, not to mention the cause in which behalf it is given, that of Baby Welfare Work, the only thing of its kind being done in Kingston.

This creature is an excellent example of the Darwinian theory of variation. In the early Miocene age the nipper ate only anguliforms, but the caterpillar began using them as a substitute for spaghetti and the worms were soon exterminated. Then the nipper turned to flies, particularly gaddies, which he would catch out gadding, and at that time developed the frizzles on his upper lip to catch the flies. During recent years he has become interested in trout flies and is a great nuisance to fishermen. He makes a good house pet and will rid the place of flies in no time.

Use a long peanut for the body, a short one for the head, cloves for horns and tall, toothpick legs, and popcorn ears. The frizzles can be shredded from the peanut with the point of a knife.

Biscuits in one oven—Roast in the other —and plenty of cooking space besides

Slow, Moderate Hot or Quick?

By simply turning the indicator of the Glenwood Robertshaw control you can set the oven at exactly the heat you need. This device controls the temperature automatically — as long as you need it.

It's dinner time; I and through the glass panels of the gas oven door see those light, crispy biscuits—baked just right by automatically controlled heat at 400 degrees. Open the door of the coal oven and there's your roast beef—brown and juicy, fit for a king!

The great Gold Medal Glenwood gives you a complete gas range and a full service coal range, all in the space of one. Yet it's barely 4 feet wide. Bake, roast, or broil in either or both, separately or together. In the cooking top, with 4 covers for coal and 5 gas burners besides, the Gold Medal combines all the cooking capacity that you will ever need.

And the Glenwood Robertshaw heat control eliminates all the old guesswork in using the gas oven.

New York Central service to industries

Dependable railroad service is vital to the success of industrial operations.

New industries prefer a location on the New York Central because of the assurance this gives of dependable railroad service day after day.

New York Central Lines, because they are always building for the greater traffic of the future, have a transportation reserve to meet the demands of peak traffic, just as they had in 1918 when called upon to serve the Nation in the war emergency.

A location on the New York Central Lines is a business asset.

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 28, 1925.

THE CITY JUDGE.

The judge of the city court of Kingston comes in closer contact with the people than the judge of any other tribunal. His jurisdiction includes both civil and criminal cases. When litigants reach the higher courts they are represented by lawyers who conduct the trial of their cases and present their arguments. But in the city court the majority of litigants are not represented by a lawyer. Among those arrested on criminal charges, whether of a serious nature or a technical infraction of a city ordinance, it is the exception rather than the rule to employ a lawyer. There are many civil suits tried without the aid of a lawyer on either side, or there may be a lawyer to represent only one litigant.

It is to the city judge that families disclose their troubles which require the help of a judge to adjust. The case may be one in which the complainant does not wish to invoke the severity of a warrant but nevertheless requires the aid of the court. There are many such cases, and the judicious magistrate who recognizes the chance to perform a valuable service and is willing to devote his time to the case frequently can effect reconciliation and reforms by sending for the offender.

During four years of satisfactory service as assistant city judge, Mr. Shufeldt displayed ability, integrity, and patience which heartily commended him to everyone whose business brought them in contact with the city court. All matters received prompt attention, justice was dispensed in an even-handed, honorable manner, the law was enforced in an admirable way and justice was tempered with mercy wherever and whenever the facts warranted. Mr. Shufeldt's training and associations have been of a high character. Besides the Albany Law School, his experience has been gained as the associate of Judge Joseph M. Fowler, Everett Fowler, Judge Stephen and Judge Jenkins. His career has been clean and in whatever work he has undertaken he has shown marked ability and conscientious devotion to duty. In every way he is qualified to become judge of the city court by the votes of the citizens of Kingston.

Believing that the Eighth ward should be properly represented in the board of supervisors, the Republicans of that ward have nominated John Herrmann. Mr. Herrmann during the many years that he has resided in the Eighth ward has proven himself a man who will perform the duties of supervisor in a manner that will reflect credit not only upon himself but upon the ward. There should be no question in the minds of the voters of the Eighth ward as to who should represent them in the county legislative body for the ensuing two years, and undoubtedly Mr. Herrmann will be given one of the largest majorities ever given a candidate for any office in the Eighth ward.

Alderman William E. Smith for the past two years has ably represented the Twelfth ward in the common council. He is a member of several important committees, and has always been active in looking after the best interests of the ward. Men of the type of Alderman Smith are needed in the management of the city's affairs and for that reason he was again selected to represent the ward. It is expected that Alderman Smith will be returned to office by a big majority.

Frederick C. Sahloff has been nominated for supervisor by the Republicans of the Sixth ward, and indications are that he will be elected on November 3 by a large majority. He has been a resident of the Sixth ward for a number of years, and has always been active in advancing the best interests not only of that ward but the city at large. The voters of the Sixth ward will make no mistake in electing him to represent them in the county legislative body.

The Republicans of the Ninth ward have selected James T. O'Reilly as candidate for alderman of the ward. The O'Reilly family have been residents of the ward for many years, and Mr. O'Reilly is thoroughly familiar with the ward and its needs. The voters will make no mistake in placing a cross in front of his name on the ballot on November 3.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

HOWE PLAYS HIS HAND.

It ever at any time during 1775 the prospect developed that perhaps after all there might be an "accommodation" between Great Britain and her rebellious colonies, right away the king, his ministers, his parliament or his agents in America—one or another of them—was always ready to come forward with some new proposition which added still further fuel to the revolutionary fire. By "accommodation" was meant a compromise or other mutually acceptable agreement which would restore peace.

In the autumn and winter of 1775-76 there was an influential party within the patriot ranks which still hoped for such an "accommodation"—not Loyalists or Tories who were against separation from Great Britain under any circumstances—but powerful patriot leaders such as John Dickinson of Pennsylvania who stoutly defended American rights but who still hoped that these rights could be gained by petitions to the king and by appeals for justice. But every such appeal was met by some new display of the royal disfavor. Words were not lacking in England in support of the colonial cause but when it came to deeds, Parliament was always behind the king and the ministry by two to one.

On October 28, 1775, General Howe, British commander at Boston, showed his hand. He had been in command 18 days and it was time to do something. Had he known it, he could have in all probability scattered the entire Revolutionary army to the four winds by descending upon its Cambridge camp perhaps a mile away. But instead, he launched three proclamations against the people of Boston, and through them against all the colonies; for all the colonies now regarded Boston's fortunes and fate as their own.

One of Howe's proclamations threatened death for anyone caught attempting to leave Boston without his permission, and branding as a traitor for anyone who succeeded in leaving, with the confiscation of all his property as an added punishment. Another proclamation said that those leaving Boston with permission could take with them not more than five pounds sterling in specie, a approximately twenty-five dollars; disregard this edict and you would be relieved of as much of your own money as you attempted to take away, fined for still more, and imprisoned.

To encourage informants, one-half the proceeds of these fines and seizures were offered as a reward. A third proclamation offered food and provisions to Boston citizens who would be good, stay at home, and organize companies to preserve order and good government within the city. This offer was, in effect, "Be the king's military police, and the king will feed you and keep you warm." It helped General Howe not at all.

Lady Hypercritical

Miss Lorraine Elizabeth Wooster gave as one of her reasons for opposing the adoption of the Winston prime the fact that one of the pictures in the much discussed textbook shows a pair of billy goat horns attached to the head of a nunny goat. We have been quite a consistent supporter of Lorraine Elizabeth since our acquaintance was formed in a Snail boarding house, in the dear, dead days, beyond recall when we were both twenty-one, but this particular objection to the Winston primer appears to us to be rather far-fetched. Assuming that during the period of our acquaintance with Lorraine Elizabeth the nunny goat has undergone the same wonderful changes as the fennel of our species, we see nothing wrong in a picture that represents a nunny goat with a pair of horns attached to her head.—Jack Harrison, in Beloit (Kan.) Gazette.

Too Blind

Dr. Cornelius Gurlik, of the Society of German Architects, said as he embarked for home on the Thuringia: "The German people have awakened. Blind obedience was their trouble in the past."

"Hans," said a German school teacher, "supposing now, Hans, a tiger was to come at you to eat you up—what would you do?"
"Nothing, teacher," said little Hans quietly.
"What? Nothing? Wouldn't you even scream for help?"
"Oh, no, teacher."

"My goodness, Hans, why not?"
"Because, teacher, my papa says mustn't never talk at meal times."

Gr-r-r!

Little Doreen Turner and Pal, the famous movie dog, are great friends. She is almost the only person beside Pal's owner whom the dog will obey. One day, during the making of a picture, some of the extras began piling the little girl, until, in desperation, she ran off the set. Presently she returned with Pal, and walking up to it group said:
"Now say those things again, and I bite you with my dog."—Los Angeles Times.

Apple Drying Plant Destroyed

Fire which broke out about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening destroyed what has been known as the Shappee apple drying plant at Gardiner village. It was a large frame structure across from the Reformed Dutch Church. The building was burned to the ground. The New Palis village fire company went to the scene but the fire was so great a great a way for the firemen to save the building. This was one of the few buildings not burned a few months ago when a number of buildings were destroyed by fire.

P. T. A. DISCUSSES LACK OF CURFEW LAW OBSERVANCE.

The October meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 4 was held on Tuesday afternoon at the school building.

The business meeting was preceded by a short program, consisting of two songs by children from Miss Decker's room, a song by ten girls from Miss Gutter's room and a recitation, "The Faithful Flowers," by Ruth Carl.

It was voted to donate $5 towards the Y. M. C. A. drive, also to pay for a basketball for the use of the boys of the school.

Principal Van Valkenburgh read an editorial from a New York paper deploring the great increase of crime, which beginning in the large cities seems to be spreading rapidly all over the country and is costing on an average of ten billion dollars annually. The majority of the crimes seem to be committed by young people under twenty-five. This condition is largely attributed to a lack of parental control and religious influences in the home. Ways in which the P. T. A. might help in combating these evils were discussed. The number of children allowed to run the streets at night in Kingston and their heedlessness of and indifference to the ringing of the curfew bell was also discussed.

THE WILD TURKEY

"Before long it will be Thanksgiving," said a child who was taking a walk in the zoo.

"Oh, yes," said another child, walking along with her, "and we're going to have turkey for dinner."

"So are we," said a third child. "Thanksgiving isn't so far off."

"No, it will come soon," they all agreed.

"We'll have pumpkin pie too," said the first child.

"And cranberry sauce," said the second.

"And turnips," said the third.

"We'll have corn soup," said the first child.

"So will we," said the second.

"So will we," said the third.

"I like cold turkey too," said the first child.

"Oh, I love it," said the second child.

"You shouldn't say you love it," said the third child. "Grown-ups are always saying we shouldn't, still I do."

"We're going to have celery," said the first child.

"And we're going to pop corn after dinner if we're room for any more food—if not, we'll pop it at night," said the second child.

"We're going to have olives," said the third child.

"I don't like olives," said the first child.

"I do," said the second child.

"We're going to have Johnny cake," said the first child.

"We're going to have lots of fruit on the table," said the second child.

"We probably won't eat it as well be eating so much else, but it will be wonderful to look at, and it always makes the table look so like Thanksgiving and so beautiful and all."

"Then we can eat it later on."

So they talked as they walked along the paths outside of the zoo.

"Oh, ho, ha, ha, heigh-ho, gobbie, gobbie, gobbie," said the Wild Turkey who had overheard them.

"I was nervous at first and I gobbled with fear and I gobbled with sadness. Then I heard them say how they were fattening up their turkeys and feeling them so much and looking after them so well. Even if one is to be eaten, that time must be very pleasant when one is being fattened and fed the best."

"But I am a wild turkey and they eat my tame cousins. I am rejoicing and being happy and pleased as I think about it for I will be safe in the zoo anyway. I will not be eaten for dinner as my tame cousins are."

"I'm a little more unusual than they and so I am in the zoo."

"Ah, yes, I must gobbie a little ditty over my joy. And this will be my little ditty:

"I'm a wild turkey, great joy, fine boy, And a Turkey to eat. When he takes his seat On Thanksgiving Day. When all feel so gay. But it's greater fun, let me tell you, To be a wild turkey, up in the zoo. And not to be eaten at all. By boy or girl, large or small. And no I sing this little ditty. To say, I don't think it's a pity That I came here from the East And will have my own, own feast. And will not give others the treat Of eating my beautiful meat."

"I Am a Wild Turkey."

Initials Game

Here each player is asked to state, the name of which begins with the initials of her own name. Alice Price must "agonize on the piano"; Sarah Lucas must "sing lustily," and so on.

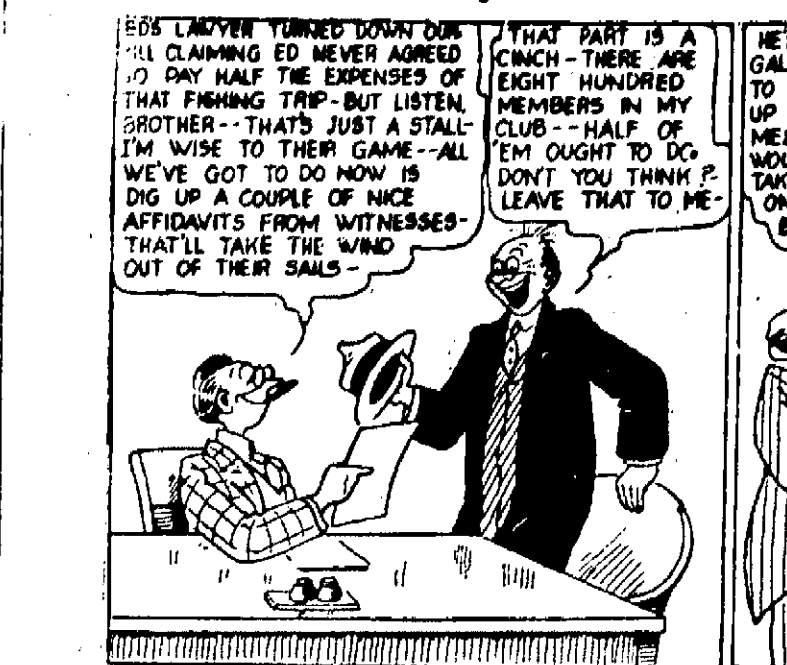

Then each player is told to rise and better herself, again using the initials of her name. Bernice Brown is "bewitchingly beautiful"; Clara Ewart is "crazed," and so the fun goes on.

Unlock Her Hair

Helen had never seen a girl her own age with long hair until her cousin came for a visit, and the tresses of fluffy hair were a source of amazement to her every day when her mother brushed them. Helen proceeded to tell her small playmates about the great wonder, and to prove her point she said to her cousin, "Unlock your hair and show 'em."

GAS BUGGIES—You Can't Build A Strong Case On Weak Memories.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Paint heart is forerunner of sadness.

Dependancy robs us of health; The man who is chock-full of gladness Is the man who makes most of his wealth.

THIS IS CANNING TIME

They are fortunate who are able to obtain wild fruit to can, as the flavor is especially fine. Wild raspberries, strawberries, blueberries and plums give quite a variety for the winter fruit closet.

Wild Plum Preserves.—Weigh carefully ten pounds each of plums and sugar; do not prepare more at one time, lest the fruit crush and its appearance be spoiled. Add three pints of water to the sugar and cook until clear, removing the scum but not stirring the sirup. Add a teaspoonful of soda to six quarts of water, and when boiling hot drop in a few plums at a time until each cracks open, then take out with a wire dipper before any of the pulp escapes. Place the plums on a platter to avoid crushing, then add to sirup, a few at a time, until tender enough to pierce easily with a straw or toothpick; place in a stone jar. Repeat until all are cooked, then boil down the juice to a thick sirup and pour it over the fruit. Cover the jar with a cloth and paper and keep in a cool place.

Tomato Jam.—Put into a preserving kettle seven pounds of ripe tomatoes, three pounds of sugar, one pound of seeded raisins, one pint of vinegar, one lemon, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, two of cloves and a few dashes of cayenne pepper. Cut the fruit fine and cook until it forms a thick jam. Seal in glasses with paraffin. Serve as a conserve with meats. This will be well liked.

Wild Grapes for Winter.—Carefully wash and remove all stems from well ripened wild grapes. Place a layer in a stone jar, then a layer of sugar, repeating until all are used. Cover with a double thickness of cloth and tie a newspaper over that. Keep in a cold place. The grapes cure themselves. Cultivated grapes left on the stems are treated in this same way and keep their delicious flavor. Huckle and blueberries, too, may be treated in the same way.

Oldtime Pocketbooks

Under Charles II of England purses were supplanted by bag-purses, which were worn over the hips, and ladies favored quilted pockets which were performed. Years later, purses of netting again came into vogue, and were carried by men and women alike, even to the days of our grandmothers. These were displaced once more by small, book-like cases made with several divisions, to each of which the contents of the day were registered—gold in one, silver in another, and buttons or copper in a third. When bookcases and bills became common the shape of the purse was modified. It was made larger, had more compartments, and because card cases and purse combined, it was known as the modern pocketbook.

New Wealth Pours Into Broadway

"Butterfly Millionaire" Supplanted "Butter and Egg Men" in the Big Night Clubs—Alger's Hero Duplicated.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 28.—Out of the whirligig of Wall Street's latest stock boom comes a new crop of millionaires.

In the crystal cabarets of Broadway these new millionaires are eclipsing the "big butter and egg men from the west."

"Permit me to introduce a big dough man from Wall Street," shouts the night club hostess above the burly, burly of jazz. "Says Wall Street's full of rocks and he's gone back for more as soon as he spends what he's got."

"Butterfly" millionaires, they call them, because the lure of the stock market will draw them back to their doom.

"Easy make—easy break," murmur the Wall Street old timers.

Reads Like Fiction.

"From immigrant boy to bank president."

The model boy of Horatio Alger's pen is duplicated in the career of Adolph Koppel, newly elected president of the Central Savings Bank.

Koppel came to America in 1871 when he was sixteen. He began as a messenger boy.

The slow-moving theater-going procession at Forty-second street and Broadway moves even slower these nights since an enterprising modiste shop on the second floor of a building has begun parading its models in the show window during the theater hour.

The models are pretty and former chorus girls immune to the ordeal of thousands of eyes upturned.

A newboy's career in the greater city has become a constant battle for individual existence against the forces of organized salesmanship which have invaded the erstwhile romantic field.

Throughout the day the licensed news stand dealers dominate the trade. But in the night the horde of "free lance" newsboys of the old school pour forth to hawk their wares on subway and elevated platforms and trains. They find the homing passengers around midnight lucrative customers.

Big Profit Made.

Despite the best efforts of publishers and police, the price of newspapers late at night is raised to provide a handsome profit. A tacit agreement among the newsboys keeps up the price.

Although 1,349 newsboys have been arrested in the past six months for boarding trains, the invasion still persists. The law prohibits the sale of newspapers on platforms or trains except under contract.

Dance and pay the doctor as well as the piper.

"Flat feet is prevalent among the youth of today and will increase unless girls realize the dangers of the present barbarous dance craze," declares Dr. Joseph J. Interland, president of the Podiatrists' Research Association.

Velvets of Every Hue

for New Formal Gowns

With the return of velvet, a certain picturesque quality promises to distinguish the formal mode this fall.

This rich material inevitably brings with it a stately, more elaborate individuality of line, that is in sharp contrast to the informality that characterized the evening apparel of last winter.

Velvets of every hue will be the vogue for formal afternoon and evening wear, being trimmed with passementerie, jewels and metallic cloth. There are few materials as superbly elegant as velvet, with its distinctive richness.

"It is the aristocrat of them all," is the way a prominent "movie" star expressed it, when she donned a magnificent sapphire-colored panne-velvet gown for a scene in a well-known production. The lines were simple, being fashioned with a straight, long bodice and a circular skirt, but more than the style or even the trimming, which consisted of silver and brilliants, did the justrous folds of the velvet proclaim the gown a thing of elegance.

With a long rope of pearls around her neck, and slippers of silver cloth, the actress said she felt positively queenly in the velvet gown, because the material itself suggests royalty by its very magnificence.

French Hosiery

The stocking of the hour in Paris is of plain sheer silk in rose beige, with openwork clocks, and these are fashionable for both day and evening wear. Among the novelty hosiery is an evening stocking embroidered in metal and in rose silk in anklet design. Both at the ankle and knee is a monogram embroidered in metal and colored silks.

Cigar-Box Materials

The following woods are used for cigar boxes: Tulepo gum, redwood, basswood, yellow poplar, Spanish cedar, sap gum and red gum. These species are listed in the order of quantities used. For many years the best cigar boxes were made from Spanish cedar. However, within the past few years a number of these other woods have been substituted for Spanish cedar.

Early Landscape Gardening

The ancients practiced landscape gardening, but little is known about the styles in vogue among the different peoples. From the early days of the Christian era to the Thirteenth century the art was mainly practiced in the adornment of walled gardens connected with castles or convents. Leonardo was a celebrated French landscape gardener of the Seventeenth century.

Things to Watch When Buying Hat

Head Size Must Be Correct; Crown Should Be Even With Headline.

The fit of the hat now enters in a quest for new hats.

Nowadays few women like to wear a hat that has to be padded, however carefully the bandeau is put in, coils demand a well-fitting hat.

For one thing, the fit of the hat has everything to do with its serviceability. The hat with exactly the right head size, that seems to belong with the wearer's head, gets fewer knocks than the one that doesn't really fit correctly. The hat that is too large blows about, one is reaching continually and sliding it off one ear over the other. The hat that is too small is constantly being pushed from the forehead or temple where it binds and gives one a headache, or induces profuse perspiration which soils the lining; or one goes about carrying the hat in the hand for comfort. Hats of which the brims set too far down over the back of the neck are always getting in the way and are pushed up by the coat collar.

And comfort? The word is unknown to the woman who tries to wear a hat that does not fit her head, so it pays to search diligently and patiently until you find what you want. Otherwise you will discard the hat after a few weeks or less of torment anyway, and the whole thing will have to be gone through with again.

For a hat to fit, there are just two things necessary; the head size must be right, and the crown must be even with the headline.

The hat must sit on the head as if it belonged there. This means that it will not sit up too high, nor slip down too far over the eyes. Of course the particular manner in which the hat will be worn is taken into consideration, but it makes a difference whether it slides down over one eye of its own malicious intent, or because it "steals" put.

A head size to be right must not bind at any point. If the wearer is conscious of any portion of the hat pressing against her head, it is not safe to purchase it. Neither must the hat slide around on the head. If a hat does not stay on the head without the wearer constantly having to adjust it, it cannot be said to fit. If the original head size is not right, many women do not mind inserting a bandeau to correct this, but the padding must be adjusted so that it does not show. Get the kinds which do not make the head hot, or leave red marks on the forehead.

The base of the crown should be neither larger nor smaller than the head it is supposed to fit. The crown should fit comfortably over the headline. It should neither bind the head anywhere nor leave large spaces between the head and the hat. No matter what size the brim, this rule is invariable, and the crown itself should cling snugly and comfortably to the head.

If it is impossible to keep the hat on without a hatpin, you may be sure that the fit of the hat is not right.

Hudson Seal Fur Coat Trimmed With Red Fox

The charming creation shown here, worn by a popular actress, is one of the new Parisian models in the fashion world. It is a Hudson seal coat, trimmed with red fox.

Gloves and Powder Match

No detail is too small for the modern costume. It is upon the little points that the success of a costume depends this season. The newest gloves, of suede with pinked edges, match one's favorite face powder in color. They are of the slip-on variety.

What Counts

It is said that the original "Safety First" sign was put over a gate at the Lincoln Street company's plant about eighteen years ago. But the important thing is not so much when it was first put up as when it was last remembered.

Black Crepe de Chine Trimmed With Daisies

Hollywood now decrees the flower gown, which means one must have one frock ornamented with flowers. A prominent "movie" star has a penchant for Shasta daisies, which are used to decorate the skirt. The daisies are white with yellow centers.

Bags in Many Sizes to Meet Taste of Every One

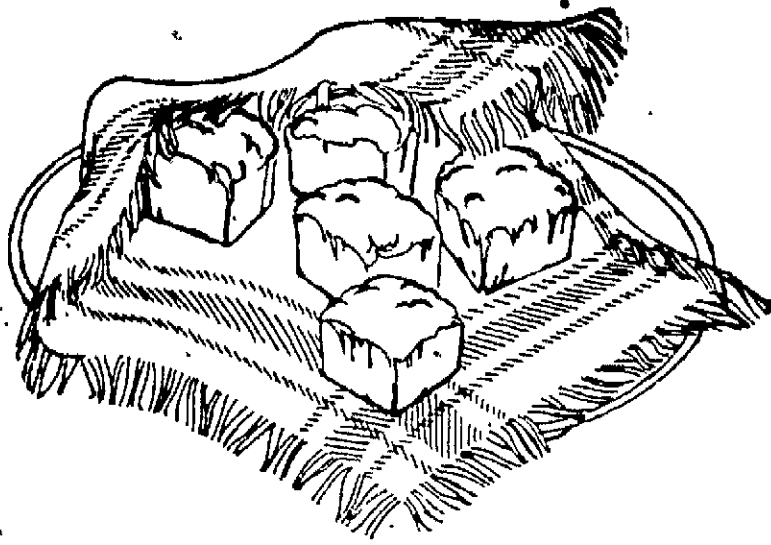

As one sees handbags in Paris, their vogue appears only to have begun, according to a writer in the New York Times. Along the Rue de la Paix, Avenue de l'Opera, Rue de Rivoli and in that longest and most alluring Rue St. Honore, there seems to be at least one bag shop in every block. There are purse bags in many sizes to fit the needs or fit the taste of every one. Some are very large, some of convenient size and hold a few necessary accessories, and many are little envelope-shaped affairs in which to carry a coin purse, handkerchief and perhaps a lipstick and powder box.

The latest bags are oblong, with a little flap at the top, and are held in shape by a stiff crosspiece. Daintier bags have handles of the same beading or are drawn together with a silk cord. Only the utility bags are now seen with metal frame and chain handle.

The point about the great quantity of bags now on the market is their artistic quality. Apparently there is little interest in the cheap, gaudy bags with which shop counters have been filled these last several seasons. The fashion has drawn the interest of artists of a high order and the best of these recent models are examples of the finest tastes and workmanship. Patterns taken from old brocades and tapestries are worked in beads so they that the surface, when it is finished, has the appearance of woven fabric. Some of the designs are very ambitious—reproductions of figures, groups, landscapes, done with great skill.

Then the heavily jeweled bags are shown for evening. The colors employed are charming, seldom bizarre, some silver and gold, but much mauve, pale green, rose, blue and amber. Quaint bags are made of genuine old silks, velvets and tapestries of embroidered stuffs and ivory trills, to carry with evening dresses.

LEATHER AND KID IN UNUSUAL COLORINGS, MAKE A TRIUMPHANT RETURN.

There is something distinctly swaggi about the new pocketbooks. They, like our dresses, do not conform to one silhouette. There is the lean envelope purse, and the very new barrel-shaped bag, or the bag of several new curving edges or unusual proportions; this inclines to novelty leather or suede.

It depends on what sort of costume the bag is to be carried with, of course. A leather bag with a cloth coat—yes—but a leather bag is hardly the running mate for a fur coat, unless it is a muskrat, coon, leopard, or any furs worn your le sport.

Oblong monograms, very Chinese in design, are another stamp of the informed, and it goes without saying that the bag must be in the same tone as the costume, or certainly of its accessories, particularly shoes and gloves.

In gloves merely plain slip-ons in washable dooskin are smartest in black, beige, bode de rose, and gray—smartest, that is, for the informal occasion. There are, of course, dressier suede handbags, and some glass kids, but gloves that are of dooskin or suede strike the newer note—just as kidskin shoes are appreciated more than velvet.

Instant Relief From Bunions--Soft Corns

No sensible person will continue to suffer from those intense, agonizing, throbbing bunion pains when the new powerful penetrating yet harmless antiseptic Emerald Oil can readily be obtained at any well stocked drug store.

Apply a few drops over the inflamed swollen joint and see how speedily the pain disappears. A few more applications and the swollen joint is reduced to normal.

So marvelously powerful is Emerald Oil that soft corns seem to shrivel right up and drop off.

Wm. F. Dedrick guarantees it and is dispensing it to many foot sufferers.

An 18 year size requires 1 1/2 yard of plain material 32 inches wide for blouse and cascade and 2 1/4 yards of figured material for the dress portions. If made as illustrated in the large view, without the cascade 1 1/2 yard of plain material is required. The width at the foot is 2 1/4 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

"Chew Well to See Well"

Chew well if you would see well, urges Sir Arthur Keith, a great British oculist. Decreased exercise of the jaw, and not eye strain, is causing short sight, he claims. Diminished use of the jaw in masticating the soft foods of modern diet, he asserts, is changing the shape of the face, lengthening the eye sockets, thus elongating the eyeballs and weakening vision.—Popular Science Monthly.

Farm and Home Bureau Social

The Flatbush Farm and Home Bureau social meeting held at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall on Monday evening proved a delightful affair to the large crowd that gathered for the occasion. The play "Early Ohio's and Rhode Island Roads" staged by home talent under the direction of Fred Kukuk, Flatbush committeeman, proved the treat of the evening. With but a short time to prepare for the play the cast selected by Mr. Kukuk proved exceptionally clever in their parts.

In addition to the play Chairman C. E. Davis arranged an excellent musical program consisting of orchestra music, a male quartet, a mixed quartet and a solo number by Ralph Young. Each number responded to several encores. Home Bureau Director Mrs. C. C. Hardenburgh, Farm Bureau Director C. C. Diamond and Bureau Managers Evelyn Nance and Wigsten spoke briefly on Bureau Activities in 1923 and 1924.

At the close of the program an excellent "feed" of sandwiches, cake and coffee was prepared by the local ladies. Games and dancing were then enjoyed by old and young until a late hour. The committee in charge, C. E. Davis, Fred Kukuk, W. P. Kieffer and Arthur Osterhout, are to be congratulated for arranging the enjoyable affair.

SIX SHORT COURSES READY AT CORNELL

By Telegraph to The Freeman
Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 23.—The New York State College of Agriculture here is offering six special courses in agriculture and related subjects in its regular winter short term, which begins Wednesday, November 4, and lasts through February 12, 1924.

The first course listed in the announcement of the college is in general agriculture. "Most of the young men who come for a winter course expect to engage in general farming," says the college. "It is for them that the course in general agriculture is especially designed. Persons who plan to specialize, and whose experience justifies it, will register in one of the professional courses or groups."

"Whether or not the student now plans to take one of the professional courses, he is advised to attend more than one winter course; and should definitely plan the work ahead for two years, taking a general course the first year and specializing the second year in whatever branch of the work appeals to him."

Special courses are offered by the department of dairy industry, poultry husbandry, pomology, floriculture, and vegetable gardening. These five departments give specialized instruction in their respective fields, and fit their students to take positions after finishing the work.

Tuition in the winter term is free to residents of New York state, and non-residents may enroll by paying a fee of twenty-five dollars. Books, board and room, laboratory fees, and incidental expenses must be counted in figuring the cost of attending the course, and two hundred and fifty dollars is a reasonable estimate for the three months, according to authorities at the college.

FEED IS DOWN NOW BUT MAY SOON RISE

Feeds are down. In a general comparison with the feed prices on September 1, there has been a substantial decline all along the line, ranging from $5.75 on cottonseed meal to $7.90 on corn meal.

All corn feeds have declined sharply, says Professor H. A. Hopper of the state college of agriculture at Ithaca. "Everything but oats is lower than last month, and Professor Hopper thinks that this may be the low point on feeds for this fall. The time is near for more general stable feeding, and that always brings up demand, which will probably check any further decline unless crop prospects are larger than have been reported."

Care for Cows and Heifers.
Cows and heifers soon to freshen should be looked after closely. At this period, cold nights, short pasture, and lack of attention will add greatly to the cost of any milk they produce. They should be brought to the barn and put into condition on legume hay, some silage, and a suitable grain mixture. Cows handled in this way will make cheaper milk later.

WEST SAUGERTIES.

West Saugerties, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Emily Burnett, school superintendent, visited the school on Friday afternoon.

Dorothea Cordes, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cordes, almost lost her life. She followed one of the family out to the mail car and climbed on to the running board on the road side of the car and fell off. The car went over her leg but did not break it. Another car coming in the opposite direction almost struck her head. She is getting along as well as can be expected.

Mrs. Rider of Shady, spent a couple of days last week with her daughter, Mrs. Roy Carle.

Bert Rogers and family of Verona, N. J., were week-end guests at the home of his brother Jacob.

Mrs. William Ector has been quite ill but is recovering. Dr. Holcomb of Painesville was the attending physician.

Sanford Garrison of Tannersville, called on his mother one day last week.

Lewis Carle spent Saturday and Sunday in Painesville.

Roy Carle and family spent Sunday at Lake Hill.

Dr. Childer and the visiting nurse called at the school on Monday.

The Rev. Mr. West will hold service here on Sunday afternoon and would like a full house.

FARM POULTRY

WINDOW GLASS IS HELP FOR POULTRY

A short time ago scientists found that animals do better when they can be in the open at least a few hours each day exposed to the direct rays of the sun. This has been demonstrated to be especially true of hogs and chickens. The reason is that ordinary window glass acts as a filter to the direct rays of the sun. Glass filters out the so-called ultra-violet rays—the rays that have a great deal to do with invigorating the animal.

Recently Prof. L. V. Crum, physicist of Iowa State college, has completed some tests that are of interest in this connection.

Professor Crum took 24 chickens that had been kept under ordinary glass for three weeks. The birds were divided into three groups of eight each. One group was housed under glass cloth. The second group was housed under cello-glass, another product that does not exclude ultra-violet light, and a third group was housed under ordinary window glass. All were given the same feed and general care. The experiment continued for four weeks. Two of the chickens kept under ordinary glass died of rickets. The remaining six gained 180 per cent in weight during the four-week period. All of the eight chickens kept under the glass cloth remained healthy and made a gain of 250 per cent during the four-week period. The group kept under the cello-glass did not do so well as that under the glass cloth. In this group two birds also died, but it appears that one of them died from an unavoidable cause, for which the cello-glass could not be blamed. The other, however, died of rickets, but it was not a healthy bird when the experiment began.

While this test is not reported because it is conclusive, we refer to it merely to remind our readers that ordinary window glass is not as good a product as we have been in the habit of thinking, because it screens out some of the most active rays of the sunlight, says the Wisconsin Farmer. No doubt the open front houses that have come into such general use in recent years owe their beneficial effect upon the flock at least partly to the fact that the ultra-violet rays of the sun pass freely through the curtain fronts.

Many Poultry Diseases
Are Easily Preventable
Though most poultry diseases are curable, they all require more time and work than the average farm flock is worth. Therefore, it may easily be seen that prevention should be the first and most important rule in poultry sanitation and disease control. Roup, tuberculosis, chickenpox and fowl cholera are the most dangerous diseases affecting chickens.

Most farm poultry houses lack a simple and effective method of ventilation. In many houses the fowls are overcrowded, and when this is the case and there is no good method of ventilation, the air is sure to become damp, and we all know that it is in just this sort of an atmosphere that roup thrives. To avoid this condition, see to it that the front of your poultry house has an open space that equals at least one-fourth of the floor space of the building. And allow at least three square feet of floor space for each fowl.

Poultry diseases spread through the droppings of diseased birds. Most flock owners have dropping boards under the roosts, and if they haven't they should have by all means. If a part of the flock is diseased, millions of germs may be removed through the droppings instead of leaving them in the litter to contaminate the other birds. Much of the surplus moisture is also removed through the droppings.

Keep the drinking water pure and clean, and sterilize the vessels every two or three days so long as disease is present in the flock. A teaspoonful of permanganate of potash may be dissolved in all the water it will make purple for drinking water whenever the birds seem in need of a tonic.

Poultry Notes
Separate the cockerels and the pullets.
Give plenty of feed to growing stock.
Each duck yields about two ounces of marketable feathers.
Houses must be sprayed frequently with a good disinfectant to keep down mites, lice, and disease germs.
Rations for the laying hens should be compounded so that the hens will eat at least one-half as much mash as grain.

A self-shedding variety may be caused by a lack of shell material, which may be the case if the hens do not have access to oyster shell.

It is profitable to keep hens comfortable. Keep the coop free from draft, still well ventilated and dry. The coldest coop is the tightly closed, ill-ventilated one.

Dutchess Cow Leads High Five

Hudson Valley District Has Three-Fifths of Notables for August—Monroe and Chautauque Represented.

Dutchess county steps into the lead in New York state dairy improvement association records for August. "Babe" of the Webb Farm, Clinton Corners, Dutchess county, leads the list in the high five with a butterfat record of 78.4 pounds for the month of August. George True of Adams Basin, Monroe county, again placed "Star" second, at 70.8 in the list of the high five. Star is a veteran contender for honors in the state department associations, and has made an enviable place for himself.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., of Hopewell Junction is the second Dutchess county man to land a cow among the five leaders. His "Pliskill Apple Ink" is third at 68.8 pounds of fat. She was first last month. Close behind Morgenthau's cow comes "Barbara" of Hewesbury, Mayville, Chautauque county. Her record was 68.3 pounds. Barbara and Babe, the leaders, are Guernseys, and the other two are Holstein Friesians.

Samuel Matthews, a third Dutchess county man, of Staatsburg owns "Peggy," the Jersey to complete the five. She made 65.9 pounds of butterfat during the month.

AGRICULTURE.

Remedy for Myopia
Myopia, or short-sightedness, is a condition in which the rays from a distance are focused in front of the retina of the eye, which results in the image being blurred. Such an eye is permanently focused for near objects, but may be corrected by the wearing of concave lenses which diverge the rays and in this way prevent their coming to a focus too soon.

TO PUBLIC OPINION

This is the cry of most of the inhabitants of six of the principal towns of Ulster County for redress for wrongs inflicted.

The one improvement which towns are permitted from the public funds is improvement to the highways.

In this respect they differ from cities and villages which are permitted improvements at the public expense of paved streets, water, sewers, gas, electricity and fire and police protection.

Improved highways afford the inhabitants of towns means easily transport their products to market, facilities for reaching cities and villages for purposes of business or pleasure, and brings the traveling public to such towns.

All property owners in the towns pay their share of the taxes, and all automobile owners pay license fees, which constitute the public fund for highway improvement.

Where towns are denied their proportionate share of the funds for highway improvement the inhabitants of these towns are suffered a wrong for which there is no redress but at the expense of public opinion.

In 1923 there was available in Ulster County funds for highway improvement amounting to $157,000.00, and in 1924, and of $180,000.00, making a total of $337,000.00, about one-third of $1,000,000.00.

All of the towns in Ulster County had roads that needed improvement and each town was entitled to a proportionate share of this public fund for such improvement. This fund was apportioned by a Republican Board of Supervisors.

In 1923, the towns of New Paltz, Lloyd and Shawangunk were apportioned nothing from this fund for highway improvement.

In 1924 the towns of Saugerties, Olive and Rochester were apportioned nothing from this fund.

These six towns containing about 20,000 inhabitants were represented by Democratic Supervisors.

The understanding of the State Commissioner of Highways, when he refused to approve of the apportionment of the Board of Supervisors, was that the money was withheld from the towns because they were represented by Democratic Supervisors, (see his letter in previous advertisement in Freeman); and his refusal was upheld in the Appellate Court.

The Republican machine in Ulster County is the best organized and most efficient in any county in the State of New York. It has one head that formulates its policies and decides action shall be taken.

Can voters be driven, like sheep, to support this machine for fear of the penalties it is able to inflict?

The Town of Olive, under unanimous resolution of its Board, Democrats and Republicans, is now in the Courts endeavoring to compel the Republican County Superintendent of Highways to release the $10,000.00 appropriated to Road 20 in this town so that it can be completed. Although the court stated that the County Superintendent of Highways would submit a list of names to the Town Board for approval of this road, he refuses to submit any names. This road is stalled. The Town of Olive is represented by Lester Davis, a Democratic Supervisor. The policies of 1923 and 1924 are continued in 1925.

The only redress is to abolish Republican machine domination.

The voters may be interested in knowing how the machine deposits the public funds. The County Treasurer's records show these deposits, and for the year 1923 they are as follows:

Ulster Trust Co.	$1,352,599.30
Ulster Trust Co., branch	32,575.02
Ulster National Bank	Nothing
Ulster Co. Bank	6,494.46
National Bank of Rondout	15,578.79
Bank of New York National Bank (Court and jury fund)	14,864.05

The Chairman of the Republican County Committee is the President of the Kingston Trust Company.

The County Attorney and Secretary of the Republican County Committee is the Trust Officer of the Kingston Trust Company.

The present County Treasurer is the Vice-President of the Kingston Trust Company.

The Republican nominee for County Treasurer in the present campaign is a Director of the Kingston Trust Company.

The Republican machine has controlled Ulster County since 1905, a period of twenty years.

Is it not time that all the towns in this County and the inhabitants thereof, who pay the taxes, and our banking institutions have a square deal?

The only remedy is to change the Republican political control of Ulster County.

Only One Denning Herd Untested

The Ulster County Accredited Herd Association, the organization in charge of the work of eradicating tuberculosis from Ulster county dairy herds, has completed a very excellent piece of work in the township of Denning.

On November 1, 1924, but one herd in this town had been tested for tuberculosis. On October 1, 1925, there remained but one untested herd in the entire town. The owner of this herd strongly objected to having his animals tested but on notification from the state that his herd was to be quarantined, this owner thought better of his action and consented to follow in the footsteps of his progressive neighbors. Consequently the only untested herd in the town is now on file at the association headquarters awaiting the application of the test.

Pressure of other work may cause delay in its application but the fact that one township in Ulster county is 100 per cent signed and 99 per cent tested brings a feeling of great satisfaction to farmers and city people interested in clean cows and clean dairy products for Ulster county.

KEEP EARLY PULLETS IN HEALTHY CONDITION.

"Don't let your early laying pullets get run down in the fall," advise poultrymen at the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. "Don't try to get more than a fifty per cent production but keep the birds in good healthy condition and feed enough to keep them laying steadily."

"Pullets which come into production early (in August or September) have a tendency toward a production slump and a molt when the short days and cool weather hit them. It is very important to maintain their weight; and adding milk, wet mash or providing artificial lights at the proper time will help out in the difficulty."

"Feed plenty of hard grain at night. In the morning, feed in proportion to the way in which the pullets are producing. Probably fifteen pounds for each hundred pullets is enough when they are producing fifty per cent or more and the weather is cold. One of the main points to remember is that if they eat more grain they eat less mash, and it is the mash that contains the animal protein and brings the eggs. However, too much mash will cause a temporary increase in egg yield, with a possible later production, body weight and later production. "A pint of cod liver oil in every hundred pounds of mash helps keep the birds in good health during the winter. Good health is one of the big assets to any of the poultry flock, and that is why the cod liver oil is worth its trouble and cost."

Mayor's Campaign in New York City Most Apathetic in History—Contrasting Personalities of Waterman and Walker.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 23.—The most apathetic mayoralty campaign in the history of New York city is rapidly drawing to a close.

Next Tuesday the people will vote out of a sense of duty, or partly allegiance—not because they have been aroused by bell-ringing speeches, conflicting issues or the burning of red dye.

As the two candidates, James J. Walker, Democrat, and Frank Waterman, Republican, swept into the home stretch today, they maintained in their speeches the "gentlemanly" attitude that has marked their campaigns.

Few brick bats have been hurled, in sharp contrast to the bitter battle for the nomination which resulted in the elimination of the Democratic incumbent, Mayor John F. Hylan.

New York being normally Democratic, betting odds today favored Walker to win. Waterman, however, is making a great fight, according to his warm supporters who predict he will ride to victory.

Not in years has New York city had such sharply contrasting personalities to choose from as Walker and Waterman.

Walker, known hereabouts as "Jimmy" has been in politics since he was a boy. He is now 44. He is the "milk" type. He is an ex-ammateur actor and knows how to handle crowds. He likes to make speeches. He lives up his addresses with a good story now and then. He was once a successful song writer, having written, among other things, "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?" He is a slender man, rather small, with a deep, penetrating voice. He has been a member of the state legislature for 16 years, during which time he sponsored such liberal legislation at 2.75 per cent beer, Sunday baseball, Sunday movies and legalized boxing.

Waterman, on the other hand, is not a professional politician. He is a business man, the manufacturer of fountain pens. He is quiet, unobtrusive and doesn't care particularly for large crowds. He makes friends easily but prefers to address small gatherings. He reads his speeches from manuscript and frankly admits he's not a spell binder. He "gets across" by good, logical reasoning. He is tall, dignified, and, incidentally, bald headed.

On issues these two men do not seem to differ greatly. Both advocate continuance of the five cent subway fare; are for more subways; for lower taxes, for traffic relief, for better schools and more playgrounds, and for an adequate police force to cope with crime.

Tammany Hall is back of Walker and Waterman has charged that this is an ill omen for the city. Walker defends Tammany Hall as a great force for civic good.

Governor "Al" Smith, warm friend of Walker's, was in New York today speaking in Walker's behalf. Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state, has made one speech in the campaign in which he praised Waterman.

It must not be thought that the British whiskey distillers are on the way to the poorhouse, however, for American prohibition has resulted in a heavily increased export trade. For instance, the exportation of whiskey to Canada, for long known to be the half way liquor house to America, increased by nearly seventy thousand proof gallons during one month. The decrease in the English consumption is said to be due to the inferior whiskey which is now being turned out, and the high price that is being demanded for it.

Public Debt Jumps Over $700,000,000

State Comptroller Gives Figures Showing Huge Increase Within New York State by Counties, Cities, Towns and Villages.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Oct. 28.—Following on the heels of attacks by Republican spokesmen upon Governor Smith's proposals for $300,000,000 and $100,000,000 bond issues to be voted on next election day, comes a statement by State Comptroller Vincent B. Murphy that the gross public debt within this state increased more than $700,000,000 from 1919 to the end of 1924.

"I am not prepared to go to the length of saying that we have undermined our credit," observed Comptroller Murphy, "but I feel free to say that the bond issue vote is reaching alarming proportions."

"It is a subject that has been very thoroughly discussed during the past few months and one with which every intelligent citizen by this time ought to be familiar."

"For this reason it is unnecessary for me to present the following facts with any further explanation of what they mean."

"In 1919, the gross public debt in New York, because of bonds issued by the state, county, city, village and town governments amounted to $2,029,422,000."

"In 1924, the gross bonded indebtedness rolled up by these governmental agencies had reached the total of $2,739,938,000. How much more has been added since January 1st, of this year, is not known at present."

"The public debt within this state is distributed as follows:

	Gross Debt 1924	Increase since 1919
State Government	$ 308,491,000	$ 72,372,000
County Governments	63,115,000	21,621,000

Democrats Vote Against Sawkill

can't figure out why we should contribute any more. They should be self-supporting and if they can't be that way, they should stop building roads."

County Attorney John W. Eckert said he did not believe Supervisor McDermott understood the resolution, which simply meant that $1,000 of the motor vehicle money which must be devoted to road construction should be used to complete the Sawkill road. The town of Ulster had been generous in this matter and he did not believe anyone would doubt that the town of Kingston would like to be just as generous if it could afford generosity. This resolution would enable the Sawkill road, near the city of Kingston, to be completed and thus, make a complete road.

The resolution of Supervisor Leahy was adopted by a vote of 20 to 7, those voting the negative being the six Democratic supervisors from Kingston city—David G. Brown, James V. Halloran, Patrick F. McDermott, Hugh McTague, Edward J. Ryan and Charles A. Van Etten, and Supervisors Lester B. Davis of Olive and James H. Enderly of Rochester.

Gardiner Road Improvement.
Supervisor Dushinberry of Gardiner offered a resolution for improvement as part of the county road system of a road designated as No. 7-B, extending from the town line of New Paltz south through Libertyville and Tuthilltown to the Shawangunk town line, which was unanimously adopted.

Dog Bills Audited.
The following bills for dogs were audited and ordered paid: John Lavalle, constable, Saugerties, $7.50; John Stoutenburgh, constable, Hurley, $6.20; W. H. Burke, constable, Marlborough, $29.80; D. S. Hutchins, justice of the peace, Marlborough, $32.50; Charles Martarazo, deputy sheriff, Marlborough, $53.80; Lanson Decker, constable, New Paltz, $15.65; I. C. Barnes, justice of the peace, New Paltz, $15.60; Alton J. Cody, justice of the peace, Saugerties, $15; Charles R. Tiller, justice of the peace, Hurley, $8; W. R. Van Demark, constable, Hurley, $7.25.

The County Building.
Supervisor McTague of the Eighth ward said he had several inquiries from taxpayers for information about the county clerk's building, and whether the work now being done had been let by contract. Chairman Frederick Davis said Ulster county had a board of county auditors consisting of three members who had charge of county buildings, repairs, supplies and heat, and they were required by law to make their report at the annual session. He doubted if he had power to direct them to make a report before that time.

Supervisor McTague said he believed the taxpayers were entitled to know about it.

County Attorney Eckert said he, too, believed the taxpayers were entitled to know, and having heard that this matter was coming up, he had informed himself of the facts, which were that the work now being done was not a contract job but was being done by day's work and the cost was $4,775. The law creating the county auditors did not require that they should be supervisors but in this instance they are supervisors, and their powers and duties were outlined in a resolution adopted by the board of supervisors a year ago and printed on page 13 of the 1924 proceedings.

Supervisor McTague said the inquiries coming to him had been as to cost and whether it was a contract job, he was familiar with all the other facts.

On motion of Supervisor Brink, the board adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

The board will meet in annual session on November 10 at 7:30 p. m. They will meet as a board of county canvassers at noon that day.

DEMPEY IS FINED 500 PESOS IN MEXICO
By Telegram to The Freeman. Mexico City, Oct. 28.—Jack Dempsey has taken the count at the hands of the Mexican law, to the extent of 500 pesos.

A small automobile of a popular make was used as a grandstand to witness the triumphal arrival of Dempsey to Mexico City. The crowds rushing to see the fighter trampled over the automobile and wrecked it.

According to the workings of the Mexican law, Dempsey was responsible for the collection of the crowd and therefore responsible for the damage to the automobile. He was assessed 500 pesos, which he paid with a smile.

RESENT CRITICISM OF WILLIS-JOHNSON FIASCO.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Newark, N. J., Oct. 28.—Resentment of the criticism leveled at the New Jersey state boxing commission for countenancing the Willis-Johnson fiasco and confidence in the integrity of the boxers were expressed today by Platt Adams, deputy boxing commissioner.

"Certainly, it was a poor show," said Adams, "but we thought Johnson was capable of doing better than he did. At the same time, I don't see where the New York papers see their way clear to razing this show. Was it any worse than the Willis-Welsh show? I don't think it was."

Stresemann and Luther Disagree

By Telegram to The Freeman. Berlin, Oct. 28.—Hints that the Locarno security pact conference did not move as smoothly as most of the spectators were led to believe, a condition consistently indicated in these dispatches, were supported today.

It was learned that serious differences have broken out behind the scenes between Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresemann over approval of the pact.

Luther has announced that he would maintain the fight for "Locarno policy" although it has already cost the resignation of three Nationalist ministers and may mean a bitter election struggle, if it brings dissolution of the Reichstag.

The premier, moreover, is determined that Germany's demands at Locarno be fulfilled before the actual signing of the treaties. These include concessions as to Rhineland status and colonial mandates.

Stresemann feels that written assurance by the Allies before December first would be sufficient.

This is the first phase of the negotiations, cabinet trouble.

Slang Pictured As Language Aid

By Telegram to The Freeman. Chicago, Oct. 28.—English language is made in the street, particularly in the American street, according to Dr. William A. Craigie, former editor of the Oxford dictionary.

He has always been true that slang is the language of tomorrow, said Dr. Craigie, and the change in the meaning of words can easily be noticed in the present day.

An "Alibi" is an "alibi" and not an "excuse," but it will be an excuse some day if the men of the street continue to use it so. The continual change in the meaning of words as brought about by common usage is the greatest factor in the taking into consideration in the writing of a new dictionary.

The next dictionary of the English language will be an interpretation of American "slang" to a great extent, he estimated. He also said that he regarded slang as a phenomenon, rather than an objectionable usage of words.

"What did they mean by crossing my bow without lights?" Captain Diehl said he asked the survivor. "They're rookies," replied the man from the undersea boat. Captain Diehl could not recall which one of the survivors replied to his questions.

News of her death came as a sudden shock to her host of friends in this city.

Sugar in History

It is said that sugar was first taken to Europe from Asia in 625 A. D. and it began to be received in large quantities by the middle of the eleventh century. Early attempts to cultivate the sugar cane in Italy did not succeed. The Spaniards and the Portuguese carried the sugar cane to the American continent about the year 1510.

Judging by Results

To judge by the event is an error all comers; for in every instance courage, it crowned with success, is here; it is crowned by defeat, however. When Nelson fought his battle in the Sound, it was the result alone that decided whether he was to win a hand at court or a rod at court-martial—Collier.

Marks-Fields.

A very pretty wedding took place Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Fields, 411 Albany avenue, when their daughter, Nellie L., became the bride of Harry J. Marks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marks of 57 Brewster street. The ceremony was performed in the radio room under an arch of honeysuckle by the Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady, pastor of the Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Church. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. Lee Gregory, sister of the groom. The bride was very pretty in a gown of white satin and she carried a bride's shower bouquet of white roses. The bride was attended by her twin sister, Mrs. Harry C. Marquart, who was matron of honor. She was very prettily gowned in powder blue satin and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Harry C. Marquart, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. The home was artistically decorated with roses and ferns, the color scheme being pink and white. Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts, including silver, cut glass, linen, money and checks. The groom's gift to the best man was gold cuff links. Amid a shower of rice and confetti Mr. and Mrs. Marks left on a wedding trip to New Jersey and other points of interest. On their return they will reside in this city. Both young people have many friends who wish them a long, happy and prosperous married life.

Mohrbeck-Buddenhagen.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Livingston Street Lutheran Church by the Rev. F. T. Schroeder, pastor of the church, on Sunday, October 25 at 2:30 o'clock. The altar was beautifully decorated with roses and chrysanthemums. The bride, Miss Jane Buddenhagen, was attired in a beautiful white satin gown with georgette and shadow lace, and looked very beautiful in her long bridal veil, caught up with a wreath of rhinestones. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses, lilies of the valley and orange blossoms. The bride was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Elsie Mohrbeck, who was also beautifully attired in Nile green with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. The groom, Frank H. Mohrbeck of New York city, was attended by the bride's cousin, William J. C. Buddenhagen. The choir, of which the bride had been a member for many years, rendered the hymnal selection, "May God's Blessing Be With You." Supper was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Herman Leutke, 16 Marys avenue, which was also beautifully decorated with pink and white crepe paper, flowers and autumn leaves. Before the delicacies were served grace was said by the pastor, the Rev. F. T. Schroeder, which was followed by a toast from the groom, in honor of his bride. A most enjoyable evening was had by all. The bride and groom were the recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts, including several checks. Telegrams of congratulations were received from out of town friends. After the reception the bride and groom left for a honeymoon to Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Canada, and other points of interest. Upon their return they will reside at 213 Canfield avenue, Bronx, New York city, where a newly furnished home awaits them. The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. John Mohrbeck, Charles Mohrbeck and Miss Elsie Mohrbeck.

Early American Ship

The first American-built vessel to make a deep-sea voyage, the Trial, was launched 283 years ago, January 12, 1642. The builder was Capt. Thomas Coytmore, who was also the first commander of the vessel. The Trial was built at Boston and was of 16 tons. In those days of 1642, and Massachusetts few persons could care to trust their lives to such a craft for even a short voyage, but in its day the Trial was considered a good ship and brought a rich return to its owners.

The Planet Mercury

Mercury is the smallest planet and the nearest to the sun, its mean distance being about 36,000,000 miles. It completes a revolution of its orbit in 88 days and its diameter is about 3,000 miles. Its mass is about one-eighth that of the earth, and its density the same as that of the earth. Mercury is difficult to see with the naked eye owing to its proximity to the sun. Tele-spectroscopy is of little interest. Fairly small can be seen on its surface, but all are indistinct.

Expect Painleve Decision Today

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Oct. 28.—President Domergue today invited M. Painleve to form a new cabinet, but Painleve has withheld his decision for a time.

M. Painleve was in conference with the president for more than one hour, leaving the presidential palace at 3:30.

"I shall return at 4:30 this afternoon and give my answer to the president, advising him then whether I shall undertake the task of forming a new cabinet," M. Painleve told the International News Service.

Political soothsayers prophesy a possible coalition of Painleve and Herriot under a switch that would let the former drop the portfolio of minister of war and take up that of minister of finance. As the ministry which has brought about the present crisis and the fall of his administration, Painleve would want to have the finance portfolio under his own hand.

He would retain the premiership, of course.

Herriot would be the dark horse in a coalition cabinet, political prophets agreed. Aristide Briand, foreign minister in the Painleve cabinet, would retain that post, if for no other reason than to assure ratification of the Locarno pact.

'We Are Enemies,' Says Summerall

Brig. General Charles P. Summerall Bitterly Denounces Colonel Mitchell Because He Was Excused As President of Court Martial.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Oct. 28.—Because he was challenged and excused as president of the court martial trying Colonel Billy Mitchell, Brig. General Charles P. Summerall today returned to the war department and openly declared "war" on the storm Petrel of the army air service.

"From now on Mitchell and I are enemies," said Summerall. "It cannot be otherwise after what he did at the court martial."

Representative Reid, Republican, of Illinois, chief of Mitchell's civilian counsel, challenged Summerall for "personal prejudice." This was done at Mitchell's request. Summerall promptly asked to be excused from serving on the court.

Summerall made no effort to conceal his anger and resentment. He was bitter in denouncing Mitchell.

"I have maintained an open mind regarding Mitchell's case," said Summerall. "I took him into my home as a friend when he came to Honolulu. Only ten minutes before the court convened, I shook hands with him. Now it is all over."

Summerall paused, and then snapped, heatedly:

"We are enemies—Mitchell and I." Summerall, formerly was commandant in Hawaii and Mitchell accused him of "knowing nothing about aviation."

"To say that I was dumfounded when he attacked my efficiency, would be putting it mildly," said Summerall.

"I immediately realized that I could not sit with an open mind on a court trying him."

Summerall told how Mitchell visited him in Honolulu while on a wedding trip around the world.

"I had Mitchell as a guest at my home. I placed a private car and chauffeur at his disposal. I loaned him an airplane. I regarded him as a friend. He inspected the air defenses of the Hawaiian Islands."

"I do not recall having read a single line of the report he handed me at that time and which he used this morning in an effort to prove me incapable of serving on the court."

Taxes Paid in Butterflies

When he faced difficulty in collecting the income tax from natives, the governor of the Belgian Congo in Africa invited the native citizens to bring in specimens of a particularly beautiful butterfly. For four butterflies he gave an income tax receipt. He then sent the butterflies to Europe where they brought as much as 30 francs each. This ingenious method of getting the tax from the natives enabled him to swell the state's coffers without discontent on the part of his people.

Device That Gets Stronger Signals

Important Improvement in Tuned Radio Frequency Circuits.

When all of the better grade models of receiving sets are brought out this fall by the leading manufacturers it will be found that one of the principal improvements in the tuned radio frequency circuits will be the introduction of a 200,000-ohm variable resistor such as the centralab radiohm. Orders for more than a million of these radiohms from set manufacturers indicates the extent to which this method of controlling oscillation in radio frequency sets will be used.

With this improvement being made in the manufactured sets, there is no reason why the home set builder shouldn't take the same advantage. The accompanying diagram shows how the radiohm can be connected in series with the "B" battery lead to the plates of the radio frequency tubes. A bypass condenser of from one-half to one mfd., indicated by "C," is necessary between the negative filament lead and the primary of the radio frequency transformer.

Perfect Control of Tubes.

The purpose of making this change is to give perfect control of the tubes on all wave lengths. This tube control is vitally important. It has long been known that a set which will not whistle or squeal under certain conditions will not produce volume or distance.

Diagram Shows How the Connections Are Made.

This whistle is actually caused by the carrier wave of an incoming signal combining with the high frequency wave generated in the set when the tubes are operated in a state of oscillation. For clear reception the tubes should be just below this point. In addition to causing whistles and squeals, the music or speech received will be mushy and distorted when the tubes are oscillating.

Control of Receiver.
Many types of receivers, of which the neutrodyne and tuned radio frequency types predominate, oscillate readily and require some means of control. Attempts to make receivers nonoscillating by means of small fixed condensers or by reducing the number of turns in the transformer primaries, are successful only at a sacrifice of volume and range. Over certain portions of the dial the set may operate satisfactorily, but over the whole range additional control of the tubes is necessary.

The majority of receiving sets are improperly neutralized or balanced. Faint signals can be brought in by turning up the rheostats, a poor and critical method of control, at best. By the use of a radiohm the receiver can be controlled on all wave lengths with the noiseless variable resistance.

Homemade Wire Scraper With Safety Razor Blade

The sketch shows how a handy wire scraper can be made from an old blade. The screws through the hole in blade should be as tight as possible so that the blade will be rigidly clamped between the two strips of wood. When one blade becomes dull, it can be easily replaced by another.—Radio Digest.

HINTS FOR BEGINNERS

Rubber tape is better than friction tape for aerial work.

Glass awning rings are tough and will stand enough strain to make them good aerial insulators.

Place the battery on frequent charge, rather than to allow it to reach the danger point of discharge. Oil poured on the columns in the coils of your rechargeable "B" batteries will keep it from evaporating.

Dr. Bonwill Here Thursday.

The Rev. George H. Bonwill, D. D., executive secretary of Hudson and North River Presbyteries, will be at the Riverside Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening, at 7:45 o'clock. Dr. Bonwill is desirous of meeting all the church officers and members.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 28.—Professional traders in the stock market attempted to bring about a reaction today by forcing large blocks of industrial and motor stocks, on the market, and "switching" their activities to the short side. As a result the market was irregular and reactionary until the third hour, when high priced industrial leaders appeared to be ready to resume their advance, and prices were marked up sharply in such stocks as General Electric, United Drug, Chrysler Motor, General Railway Signal, etc.

The best records were made by the high priced industrial and mercantile stocks.

General Electric jumped 12 points to 312 1/2. Woolworth advanced to 210 1/2, up nearly 7 points. United Drug at 162 was up ten points for the day and 14 points since Monday.

United States Steel lagged behind the general list, but Gulf States Steel rose about four points to 90 1/2 in active trading, and slightly higher prices were quoted for Republic, Bethlehem Steel, Steel Foundries and Crucible.

The rails and oils did very little. American Woolen's advance to 57 1/2, up five points since yesterday noon, was in direct response to the better outlook in the textile trade and larger profits due to lower raw materials. Sugar stocks made a favorable showing, as also did the leading shipping stocks, equipments and specialties.

"Smith" in England

In England there are 330,000 persons of the name of Smith, and 204,000 of them have "J" for their first initial. The John Smiths number 41,000; the John W. Smiths, 30,000; and the John William Smiths, 5,000. It has been necessary to devise a mark for them to distinguish the products they make or own. A monogram with symbols will designate just which Smith is referred to. It was necessary to include five symbols in the monogram.

Musical Innovator

The name Monteverde Orchestra is probably given in honor of Claudio Monteverde, who helped so much in the establishment of the modern orchestra. He rebelled against the arbitrary modes of the day (1587-1642) and made innovations, especially in harmony.

Myths of the Mirror

In parts of Britain it is believed fatal to allow an infant to look in a mirror before it is a year old, while Sweden maintains that a girl must not look in the glass after dark, under pain of losing all attraction for the opposite sex.

Broken Rail Caused Wreck

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 28.—A broken rail, laid in 1919, and which ordinarily should have given service for 20 or 30 years, was blamed today by officials of the St. Louis and San Francisco railway for one of the most disastrous wrecks in the history of southern railroads, which claimed the lives of 20 persons yesterday at Victoria, Miss., when the Sunnyland flyer was derailed.

The rails spread when the heavy locomotive passed over it; at a mile a minute, investigation by the railroad officials indicated. The first car, and a chair car, combination smoker, four Pullmans and the mail cars dashed headlong over a 40 foot embankment when they hit the spread rail.

Investigation Ordered.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today ordered a thorough investigation of the derailment of a passenger train on the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad which resulted in heavy loss of life in Victoria, Mississippi, yesterday.

Sight Not at Best Before Age of Six

A child does not attain his keenest eyesight until he is six years old or more. Small objects are not so well seen, the parts of the brain devoted to vision being incompletely developed. This is the statement of Dr. Edward Jackson, Denver specialist, who writes for Hygeia, popular health magazine published by the American Medical association, in an article of "The Baby's Eyes."

Abundant reason exists for using large type in primers, says Doctor Jackson. Fine stitching, beadwork, and similar exercises, such as are sometimes expected of young children in kindergarten, may be quite harmful. Even when the object looked at is so small the young child must not be expected to look at it long at a time, but should be encouraged to turn the eye away frequently to rest them. "Keep the eyes on the book" at times when they are tired does not help the child to learn and may be harmful. Because they can hold things close to their eyes and still see them, and because they need larger images of what they look at to make up for the incomplete development of the eye, young children are liable to acquire the habit of holding things too near their eyes. American Wins Bet at 500 to 1

Approximately a Quarter Million Dollars Changes Hands When American's Horse Romps Home Winner in English Race.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 28.—Masked Marvel, owned by the American A. K. Macomber, romped home a winner today in the Cambridgehire handicap winning a huge sum on a double bet at 500 to 1 for its owner.

Macomber is understood to have placed one hundred pounds, approximately $500 on his horse Forsett to win the Cesarewitch and his horse Masked Marvel to win the Cambridgehire. He secured odds of 500 to 1 on the bet and thereby wins approximately $250,000.

Macomber's bet is believed to be one of the greatest long shots in the annals of British racing.

The Cesarewitch and the Cambridgehire are two of the last of the English season's racing classics, and it is very unusual for one owner to win both races.

Forsett won the Cesarewitch as a rank outsider, paying twenty to one. Masked Marvel was not regarded as a favorite in today's race, although it was well backed on the strength of the report that Macomber had played a double on his horses to win the two races.

Pons Ashmorum finished second to Masked Marvel and Elmo Petre finished third.

Twelve Pointer, which was ridden by Dresley, who rode Forsett to victory in the Cesarewitch, was the favorite, but failed to come in the money.

Lord Derby's Conquistador, which had also been heavily backed, failed to place.

Ordinarily English bookies, or turf accountants as they choose to call themselves, do not pay odds of more than 50 to 1 on a single race or proportionate odds on a double event. However, by prior agreement terms can be arranged for a bet of fixed odds. Macomber entered into an agreement with a firm of commission agents for the bet on his two horses and succeeded in winning. The name of the firm with which the bet was placed was not known. English racing is accustomed to surprises and long odds have been paid before. Master Robert won the Grand National two years ago at odds of 25 to 1 and a Belfast woman had it in a double with another horse which won and she collected odds of 100 to 1 on the successful double, but Macomber's successful double today is believed to be the best long shot in English racing.

CONTRADICTORY TESTIMONY AT S-51 HEARING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.—Testimony that he saw no lights either on land or sea the night the S-51 was rammed and sunk by the steamship City of Rome, with a loss of 33 lives, was given to the naval inquiry board today by Earling Knutsen, lookout aboard the liner.

Knutsen's testimony was in direct contradiction to that of previous witnesses, who told of watching a red light and two white lights in front of the City of Rome for twenty minutes before the crash.

Knutsen testified he did not see Captain Diehl on the night of the crash.

He said he heard the order for a rope to be passed to the submarine but did not see one thrown.

William Adamson, 19, of Newport, R. I., lookout aboard the City of Rome, testified to seeing the white lights and later the red one before the crash. When the liner rammed the S-51 Adamson was thrown to the deck. A few minutes after he got to his feet, Adamson said, he saw the submarine drift by. Men on the submarine were calling for a rope. Adamson said he tossed a rope in the direction of the submarine but the under water craft was too far away for the rope to reach it.

Captain John H. Diehl of the steamship City of Rome was the next to go on the witness stand.

THE CHILDREN COME

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

TRUTH moves but slowly, but it moves.

It takes a century of thought before the race a thing approves. That in a moment might be wrought. The hearts of women long ago knew war was wrong and war a show. But men have stilled the mother's groan.

With horns a little louder blown.

But now I hear another trend, Another generation nears. Truth moves but slowly, but ahead. The world is tired of making tears. We thought us wise, yet into war The sad world blundered as before. With grief again the world is dumb. But there is hope: The children come!

YOUR Last Name

IS IT WASHBURN?

THE Washburne family, which is one of the finest in New England, traces descent to John Washburne who settled in Duxbury, Mass., in 1631. He was a member of an old English family that derived its name from Washbourne, County Worcester.

Washbourne gave the name to this family and was the seat of the family until 1582. The earliest mention to one of the name dates from the reign of Edward I when a Walter de Wasseburne was mentioned.

There was an Israel Washburne of this family who served valiantly in the Revolution, a Benjamin Washburne, born in 1816, who was secretary of state, and Israel Washburne, his brother, who was governor of Maine.

Cadwalader Colden Washburne was a member of congress, major general in the Civil war and later a prominent flour manufacturer. His brother was Elihu Benjamin Washburne, member of congress, secretary of state, and minister to France. He was the only foreign representative who remained in Paris through both the siege and commune period.

RODIE—This is a name of French origin. Adolph E. Rodie, born in 1899, was the son of John Rodie, a Frenchman.

RUFFIN—This name is an old name in North Carolina, and was undoubtedly of French origin. In England the name Ruffin was introduced by Dr. James Ruffin, a student of Leyden in 1671. He went to England because of his Protestant beliefs after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. He married Elizabeth Young and founded the Ruffin family in Suffolk county, England. The founder of the American Ruffin family may have been akin to this family whose name is spelled Ruffin in England.

Mother's Cook Book

From four things God preserve us—A painted woman, a constricted waist, salt beef without mustard, and a late dinner.

FOR SPECIAL OCCASIONS

HERE is something that may be prepared a little at a time, making a rare treat when all the fruit is added:

Fruit Melange.
A stone crock or a large glass jar will be the best receptacle. The fruits in their season are preserved and a cupful at a time is added to the jar. Arrange in layers without stirring and keep closely covered in a cool place all the time. Begin with berries and add peaches, pears and plums and apricots, finishing with a pint jar of unsweetened cherries, though the fresh cherries will be sufficient. Let stand a month or two before using.

Peaches in Raspberry Juice.
To two quarts of raspberries or canned fruit with the juice drained off, add four quarts of peaches and seven pounds of sugar; this will make about eight to ten pints of this preserve. Boil the strained juice; if it is from canned fruit allow less sugar; add a few crushed peach kernels for flavor. Add the peaches cut into halves a few at a time, cooking them quickly until clear. Remove from the stove, cool and allow them to stand until perfectly cold before canning.

The juice is then boiled again and poured over the fruit which has been packed in the jars. Any fruit juice may be used—pineapple, strawberry or grape; all will make delicious preserves.

When the carrots are small in size, cold-pack a few jars of them for winter. Then when wanted all that is needed is to heat and serve them with any desired sauce. After scalding them place in jars, partly seal after adding salt—one teaspoonful to a quart—and filling the jar with boiling water; cover well with boiling water and boil one and one-half hours. Remove and seal tightly.

Mitchell Starts With Victories

against Mitchell—some 30,000 words long—the spectators seemed bored. Reid read, as a part of the record the long statement given out by Mitchell at San Antonio, Texas, last September, in which he charged army and navy heads with "an almost treasonable administration" of aviation, with "openly distorting facts or telling untruths" about aviation and with a "disgusting lack of aircraft knowledge." It was this statement which led to Mitchell's court martial.

Summerall Shocked.
General Summerall was openly shocked by the challenge of defense counsel. He immediately declared he had never held any hostile views toward Mitchell and that he was "learning for the first time" that Mitchell's report on his aviation management at Hawaii was "based on hostility." He was frankly angry at the turn of events which removed him from the court.

Sladen Surprised.
General Sladen, the West Point commandant, also was visibly surprised at being peremptorily challenged. Reid made no effort to explain the challenge as the defense is entitled to one peremptory challenge without the need of citing any reason.

Sladen reluctantly gave up his seat. His name apparently was suggested to Reid for this challenge by Mitchell himself as the two conferred in whispers for a moment before the Illinois congressman demanded Sladen's removal.

Bowley Not Surprised.
Because of his frequent criticism of Mitchell, Bowley apparently expected to be challenged. He smiled toward Mitchell and the defense counsel and bowed gravely to them as he left the court room.

Read Statement Again.
After McMillen had been reading for a half hour and began to repeat the San Antonio statement, Colonel Winslow, law member of the court, interrupted to ask whether this procedure might be waived. Both Reid and Colonel Moreland, the judge advocate, protested that to waive "reading any part of the specifications" would be contrary to military procedure.

The court then ordered McMillen to proceed. This ruling meant that the jury and audience probably knew Mitchell's statement by heart before the trial ended, as it had been included eight times in full in the specifications of the charges against him.

Jury Also Bored.
With this statement being read for the third time, Mitchell began to lean heavily on his counsel table. His gaze frequently drifted around the room and even the jury of generals at last joined the spectators in their boredom.

Court Rescued.
When McMillen finished the reading of Mitchell's statement—the third of the day—court was recessed until 2 o'clock.

Boake Admits Criticism.
The defense of Colonel William Mitchell struck the first blow by challenging the right of Brigadier-General Albert J. Bowley, commandant at Fort Bragg, N. C., to sit upon his "jury of generals."

The challenge was made by Representative Frank Reid, Republican of Illinois, civilian counsel for Mitchell, who declared General Bowley had shown prejudice to the flying assistant in a speech made before an American Legion meeting at Greenville, S. C., on October 20, 1925.

Reid read a portion of the speech in which Bowley criticized Mitchell for his advocacy of a separate air service, and added:

"It is impossible for General Bowley to hold these views and to say he can sit here as a member of this court without bias and hostility."

General Bowley immediately arose and admitted having made the speech referred to by Reid.

"I am sure however that I can sit on this court without bias and hostility," General Bowley immediately arose and admitted having made the speech referred to by Reid.

After a short consultation, the court decided that Mitchell's challenge of Bowley was well taken and his services on the court were dispensed with.

Challenges Summerall.
As soon as this decision was announced Mitchell's counsel promptly challenged Major General Charles Summerall, the presiding officer of the court.

Reid declared Summerall had shown prejudice in a speech to the military order of the world war at a session in New York city on September 24.

In his speech, Reid said, Summerall had charged Mitchell with guilt of "irresponsible talk" in his criticism of the handling of military aviation.

"That statement by General Summerall shows prejudice and bias," said Reid, "and I challenge his right to sit as a member of this court."

Are Bank Books Public Records?

Judge Van Etten Claims Right to Examine County Treasurer's Bank Books the Same as Documents Which Are in Custody of Bonded Public Official.

To the Editor of The Freeman: Sir: Are we to understand from the letter of the county treasurer, published in your issue of the 27th inst., that an inspection of the public records of the account of the public funds cannot be had except in the presence of the county treasurer or his deputy?

Criticism is made because these records were inspected during the absence of the county treasurer and his deputy from the office.

I accept no responsibility for such absence at about 10 a. m. and 11:30 a. m. on the 26th inst., which were the times I made my examinations of the public records in the county treasurer's office.

The stenographer in charge of the office produced the records requested by me, which it was her duty to do. No blame can be attached to her for performing this duty. Her long experience, knowledge and ability make her one of the very best and most valuable public employees in Ulster county.

Public records are not private. Every citizen, including myself, may inspect public records, not by permission nor favor, but as a matter of right. No apology is needed for the exercise of this right.

For nearly 40 years have I been engaged in searching public records, and never yet have I asked permission to do so, and it is rather late for me to begin to do so now.

The object of this inspection of the record was to show that the Kingston Trust Company, whose principal officers are the principal officers of the Republican machine, received the advantage of the deposit of public funds over all the other banks in the city of Kingston. The amounts set forth in the political advertisement showing the deposit of public funds during the year 1925 can be compared with the statement of the county treasurer in the same issue. The other figures in the statement of the county treasurer have no application to the figures in the political advertisement.

Compare the $15,578.75 deposit of public funds in the First National Bank of Roadout (which represents many of the most substantial and important business interests in Ulster county) with the deposit of public funds of $1,410,376.43 in the Kingston Trust Company and its Branch, and it may be likened to Lazarus picking up a crumb fallen from the table of the Master.

Thanking you for the courtesy of publishing this letter.

Respectfully,
JOHN G. VAN ETEN.

Lutherans Form New Brotherhood

With fifty-five men present, with a signed membership of eighty-six names, the Brotherhood of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, was organized Tuesday night. The organization took place under the chairmanship of the pastor, the Rev. William H. Pretzsch, who explained the object of the Brotherhood and expressed his joy over the wonderful response made to his appeal for such a society.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Fred Ewel; vice-president, Thomas R. Rice; secretary, Edward Gill; treasurer, Frank F. Snyder.

The question of dues or free will offering was discussed at length. The result was an offering of $55 to defray any necessary expenses. No dues.

The gist of all discussions and resolutions was to win men for Christ through the Brotherhood and to have a real social time at every meeting.

Meetings will be held twice a month, business and social the second Tuesday, and social only the fourth Tuesday.

After the business had been transacted every one sat at the tables bountifully prepared with sandwiches and coffee and cigars.

The entertainment committee that had volunteered for the evening was elected to serve next month: Louis Walker, William F. Walter, Carl Ortlieb, Edward Gill, Harry Paulus, William Van Keuren, Alvin Bush, Edward Remus.

The meeting was opened with the hymn, "I Love Thy Zion, Lord," the reading of II Tim. 2, and a prayer by the pastor, and closed with the Lord's prayer. All business meetings will begin with a short devotional service and concluded like wise.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 28.—Great Britain will contest with the United States next year for the Schuster Cup with a type of ship that will challenge American engineering skill to defeat Captain Hubert Broad, English pilot, said today as the British contingent prepared to return home.

Captain Broad had high praise for Lieutenant "Jimmy" Deolitic, who created a new record in winning the race this year.

This new record makes us feel somewhat better over our defeat, said Captain Broad, who finished second. "While we had placed our hopes on the so-called mystery ship the S-1, which was wrecked in trial I do not believe she could have bested a Deolitic's craft."

Kingston Five Plays First Game Tonight

Riverside of Poughkeepsie Will Oppose Kingston League Quintet Tonight at the Armory Court—Lineup Will Follow the Game.

The first basketball game of this season will be staged this evening at the New York State armory, when the Kingston quintet of the Tri-County League will battle with the Riverside of Poughkeepsie. The game will start at 8:30.

This exhibition game this evening promises to be very interesting as the Kingston team is composed of all local players and a number of the Poughkeepsie five are well known to local fans. McDermott, Dewey and Russell have played on Colonial baseball teams, but their ability as basketball players is little known here.

Koenig and Dolson will be in front for the locals tonight and the guards on the Bridge City quintet should have a busy evening. Spait and Johnson will be in the background for the locals. Besides being good on the defensive in former seasons these players have proven to be good scorers. Bob Murray will hold down the pivot. Murray has been playing in and around the vicinity of Kingston for a number of years and he is also expected to make a good showing.

Bud Culliton, member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, world champions, will be the cleventh man in the cage. Culliton is as good a selection for a referee as can be secured. Besides knowing the game, Culliton is capable of handling the players and his decisions will be impartial.

Following the contest the usual dancing will be in order, music being supplied by the Colonial Serenaders.

Pennsylvania Has a Fine Line

Singer and Thayer, Pennsylvania Ends, Will Have Opportunity to Show Ability Saturday Against "Red" Grange of Illinois.

(By David J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28.—Can the Pennsylvania system of offense, with its wings going directly to the ball runner the minute a play is in motion, stop "Red" Grange of Illinois on Saturday? This is the major question of the day on the local campus. You answer it by asking several more. How Grange is Grange forks and what about the knives and spoons?

There will be no adequate answer to the Pennsylvania interrogation until its ends come tearing in toward Grange on Saturday as soon as he gets the ball, which will be as soon as Illinois gets the ball.

The Pennsylvania system calls for its wings to take several strides beyond the cautionary point before coming to a halt and diagnosing the direction of a play. In this way, they take the initiative and against a team using little deception, they are quite effective.

The writer, however, has come to believe that Grange is inclined to some deception in his activities. He, in fact, is the most deceptive ball runner in the game and adds to this by being at least a double, if not always a triple threat.

There is more than an even chance that Singer and Thayer may find themselves drawn out of position on occasions, and, if they are, a fine time will be had by all, including Harold "Red" Grange.

The Pennsylvania ends happen to be an exceptionally fine pair at that. They can do anything an end should do, with one possible exception. They cannot substitute for themselves. This is to be deplored, since the reserve wing strength is rather weak, as it were.

It is the only department in which the Pennsylvania team is not fool-proof. It has a fine charging line, featuring Captain Willson and Seraci, a pair of All-American possibilities, at the tackles, Butler, Snyder and Pike, three exceptional guards, and Robinson, another embryonic All-American, at center. Hake, at tackle, is just a stride behind the varsity pair.

All in all, Pennsylvania has one of the finest lines in the game.

This, ordinarily, is enough. But Pennsylvania goes further. It has a great plunger and kicker in Kruez, a ball runner and passer in Rogers; two good quarterbacks in Leith and Laird, and several spare ball runners in Fields, Douglas, Thomas and Sorensen.

Eastern Backs Loom Large

Kruez and Rogers of Penn; Willson, Hewitt and Buell of Army Are in the Front Ranks—Slog of Princeton Shows Class.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 28.—For the first time in several seasons, the East may have a few plausible backfield candidates to offer when the All-American plums are distributed. This section, which gave Jim Thorpe, Eddie Mahan, Brickley, Charley Barrett and other immortals to the game, hasn't produced a real All-American backfield star since Glenn Killinger graduated from Penn State three or four years ago. Koppisch, of Columbia, got the Camp vote last year, but was far from a foolproof halfback.

The backs of national note have come from the Middle West, featuring Grange and the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame; the South where Wyckoff, of Georgia Tech, has held forth for three seasons, and from California and Stanford.

Come Into Their Own.

Now, however, the Eastern ball runner seems to be coming back. Pennsylvania uncovered a fine pair in the Yale game, Kruez and Rogers. Yale also has a couple of candidates, while Willson, Hewitt and Buell, of the Army, are sectional leaders, even at this immature moment. Willson was a co-star with Killinger at Penn State and should know what it is all about by this time.

Shapley, of the Navy, is above the average. So is Keefer, of Brown, not to mention Oberlander, of Dartmouth, and Pease, of Columbia. Many thought Pease was more deserving than Koppisch of recognition last year.

Gustafson, of Pittsburgh, can also join the line forming on the left. Carlin, of W. and J., and Foley, of Syracuse, are very likely entries.

This brings the issue down to a man who has been around and about for years, receiving general recognition for his greatness, but escaping official notice, or being ignored by same. The writer refers to Tryon, of Colgate. If over he is to come into his own, Tryon must do it this season, since it is to be his last. Gehhardt, of Lafayette, also is about due.

None at Harvard.

Princeton has a good back in Siagle, but Harvard has nothing, at least at this moment. It has one Miller, a 200-pounder, who has bettered 10 seconds on the track, but Miller, either through non-support or a frank lack of ability, has yet to astound or even interest the natives.

However, the day is early and the field large. Anything may happen in November. Things usually do.

There is little likelihood that the East will produce another Thorpe or Mahan for another generation, not to mention the season of 1925. But, with the present calibre of material on hand, it has better than an even chance of turning out a really representative back for the first time since Killinger operated.
